The task of organizing the drawer began with examining various papers. The first was an Algebra paper with a 100 on the top. Theyt was the second sheet of the infamous Junior Research books. Haper. and, there a stack of uport Cards were sorted through. Why save all these terns. They, of course, represented the real reason for the rest of the Duaphork-Iducation. Without the academic area there would have been no basis for organizations. actuities, or athletics. Math, English, Devence, F.E. Cand, and History all were poured into the drawer at variging degrees. These memories are for future use - to be pulled out to use. as needed in college and/or Careers. They are not easily represented in a Scrapbook - the are in the mind for all times.

Three Graduation Options Legislated for Class of '88 To Enhance Education

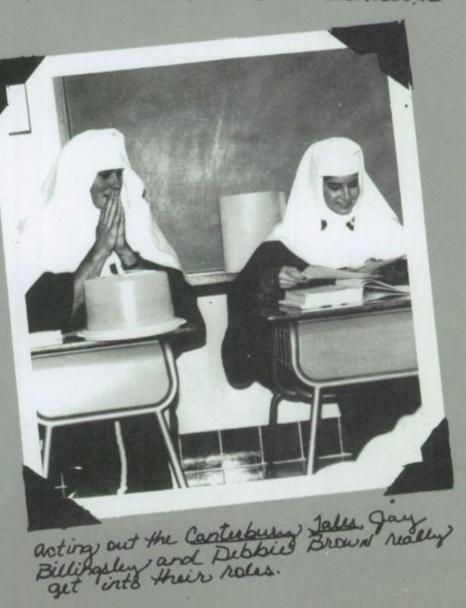

Students searched for relief during 1985-1986 from the lasting effects of the controversial laws concerning future graduation requirements. As consolation, the class of 1988 received optional education programs allowing students to choose the exact path their education would take.

The three options consisted of regular, advanced, and advanced honors programs. Those choosing the regular route had only to meet a 21 credit requirement, therefore allowing advanced programs encouraged and one semester of health education. students to take more specific courses Counselor Suzy Herttenberger planned.

emphasized, "If a student planned to graduate under either of the advanced programs, only two athletic or substitution credits such as band or drill team counted toward graduation. Because of this, if one chose to continue with one of these courses, no graduation credits were awarded."

Similarities in the programs included four years of English, three years of math, one semester of government and one of economics, for more elective courses. The two three semesters of physical education,

Varied Elective Choices Combine Interest Activities With Educational Aims

As in each school year, students received a wide variety of elective options, however, all these courses attempted to achieve an identical purpose. The objective of these classes consisted of preparing students for entering the social spectrum, while simultaneously granting needed time for the more rigorous academic subjects.

In addition to Home Economics, Psychology, Sociology, Vocational, and Business classes, electives also encompassed the Fine Arts and Foreign Languages. Traditional diction and rhetoric embroidered the curriculum of French, German, Latin, and Spanish, Kara Wickham, a fourth year Spanish student, attested, "In the past few years. I have developed and inherent knowledge that will no doubt help me in my future social and business endeavors."

The Fine Arts Department combined learning with school spirit through performances and other activities. During the year drama students could be seen in theater productions, band students marched on the football field, choir was heard caroling in the halls at Christmas, and art students produced more goalpost posters than ever before.

Advanced Reading, a new honors course conceived for the promotion of vocabulary and reading speed, supplemented the students opportunity to read books.

Vocational Classes Create Career Opportunities By Developing Skills

opportunities by developing students' skills and interests. Students' education consisted of a cooperative training program and pre-employment lab training. Both types of training provided valuable experience.

The pre-employment training program required students to take classes providing technical skills in a certain occupation. Students spent one, two, or three class periods at both MacArthur and Irving High Schools in subjects such as printing, cosmetology, and metal trades.

The cooperative training program combined on-the-job experience with classroom instruction. Students worked for a minimum of 15 hours a week to receive three credits. Subjects ranging from office education to industrial trades enabled young people

Vocational Education created job to explore different career options. For example. CVAE Co-op prepared students for employment in areas such as food services and child care. Students earned a salary while employed by local restaurants and retailers.

> Youth organizations, such as Future Homemakers of America, developed responsibility and leadership skills. Marjanna Thomas, co-sponsor for FHA, described the club's objectives as, "We do anything we can to improve school and family life." Through regular meetings, these organizations added a social atmosphere while expanding occupational knowledge.

PE, Alternatives Provide Physical Activities as Part Of Daily Curriculum

Education served as a basis to provide students with a background in a * variety of sports.

Different areas open to participants included aerobics, weightlifting, and archery. "PE was fun because you could get all the extra energy out of your system during a long day," affirmed Sophomore Cynthia Krkoska. Although one and one half years of Physical Education had to be taken for those who wished to graduate, alternate courses such as athletics, band, cheerleading, drill team, and ROTC allowed students to earn PE credit as well.

Pre-Drill, a new class lead by Cardette Sponsor Pam Willis, proved to be popular among those students who aspired to be Cardettes.

Throughout the year Physical "PreDrill taught the girls what they needed to know to prepare themselves for Cardette tryouts in the winter. It also gave them a closer look at what drill team was really about," advocated Cardette Leader Kris McFerren. Sophomore Amy Prater added, "I decided to take Pre-Drill because being a Cardette was really important to me and I wanted to prepare for tryouts."

> While Pre-Drill prepared future Cardettes to fulfill the PE requirement, ROTC, cheerleading, band, and athletics did the same by competing to support the MacArthur pride. Senior Varsity Cheerleader Polly Amason emphasized, "All the spirit groups provided a valuable service to the school and definitely deserved to receive PE credit."

It would seem that with a few things out of the way, this drawer would be less cluttered. Hot so! Mreamers from the cheerleader poin poms are tangled around such organezational diversities as a candle رهبز کر کا lit during the Hational Honor Docety initiation, a toy gun from a Cardette routine, à piece of music played at a Band U.I.L. contest, and a yellowing copy of the Macazine. These momentos are reminders of the times spent in deciding what organization to join. The decision was often based on talent, interest, or kenefit. The talent, of course, limited some people. Interest was the most difficult basis, because of the wide variety of organizations available. and, benefit was the two-fold situation. Most organizations were service oriented - benefitting the community as well as the participant.

Even With Small Membership, Group Experiences Effective Year Through Interaction, Learning

Parlez-vous Français? Do you speak French? If so, you should join the French Club.

This group offered many exciting opportunities to those who wished to expand their language capabilities while having fun. Cari Walker stated. "The French Club gave me the chance to have fun with people who had the same interests that I did."

During the course of the year, the club held several activities and fund raisers. For instance, at Christmas the group sold Mistletoe Messages to students. The money from these holiday notes went to defray costs for the spring banquet.

In the spring, the organization participated with Spanish, Latin, and German in the All Language Picnic, held at Cottonwood Park. In addition to eating, the clubs competed against each other in various games and sports.

The organization also sponsored a child in Ethiopia. The members raised money to buy the child food and clothing. Later in the year, they held bake sales and ended by having a banquet.

The officers were: President Scotty Gage, Secretary Nicole Miller, Vice President Marilee King, Reporter Mika James, Historian Avee Angwatanakul, and Project Chairman Julie Camp.

Miller emphasized, "Although our group wasn't all that big, we had an effective year and we had fun." James added, "During the year, I learned many things about France."

Spanish Club Adopts Family; Donates Thanksgiving Meal, Christmas Presents, Food

The Spanish Club reached out a hand to help this year. And help, it did, through the adoption of the needy. Under the leadership of President Christina Flores, the Spanish Club adopted a family. The group treated their family with a homemade Thanksgiving dinner and a joyful Christmas they would have not otherwise experienced.

The 30 member club also adopted Aturo, an impoverished boy from Mexico. Communication took place both ways from the club to the child in the form of letters and pictures.

Other officers included Vice President Melanie Hallmark, Treasurer Shelly McClendon, Secretary Bud Polston, and Reporter Janine Kraska. This group led the club through meetings, pizza parties, a breakfast, and successful bake sales.

Spanish Club members also participated in a schoolwide foreign language club picnic on April 13 at Cottonwood Park.

Sponsored by Jeanette Dolman, the club held a banquet in April, closing the year and recognizing dedicated club members.

Club Motto, Fide et Opera, Through Faith and Labor, Typifies Members' Participation

Fide et opera—through faith and labor. With this theme, the Latin Club and Sponsor Ann Price participated in worthy projects for the group and the community.

Once again, the organization aided the elderly of Irving through minor home repairs and yardwork. On special occasions, members delivered gifts to their elderly friends.

The new secret pal program enabled students to show their appreciation for various teachers' work at school. At various times throughout the year, the secret pal received gifts like carnations, pencils, and Price's special pie. Finally, at the end of the year, secret pals were revealed and most teachers were pleasantly surprised with the revelation.

After excluding it from the agenda a year ago, the club began work at Texas Stadium again. Instead of concessions, though, members sold stadium novelties such as T-shirts and pom-poms. In all, profits totalled approximately $2000. President Greg Charlton explained, "It was fun. Working there not only raised money for the group, individual members made money, too. It took a lot of effort, though."

Latin Club kicked off the year with a successful Halloween Party. The organization rolled on with its annual progressive dinner and submarine sandwich party. On April 13. Latin Club competed against other foreign language clubs in various events at the Cottonwood Park picnic. In August, the members participated in the state convention in Roundrock, Texas, and the national convention in Indiana to conclude the year. Freshman Brian Zvonecek summed up the year, "It was a blast—not only the parties and activities, but also the people made the club exciting."

Die Kleine Gruppe Describes German Club's Membership; Not Determination, Activities

The words die kleine Gruppe, meaning small group, accurately summed up the year for German Club. Due to extremely small classes, the club also suffered a lack of attendance. Carolyn Muir explained, "When people heard French theythought of a romantic language. Spanish was always popular because of Texas' ethnic background. But when people heard German, they always thought of gesundheit and Hitler. There's more to the language than that."

No matter how small, the club determined themselves to fill the year with various activities. They kicked off the year with ice skating and followed with parties at several of the members' homes. Bake sales also filled the year and the annual banquet took place in May. The club also ventured to Scarborough Faire during April.

Officers for the 1985-1986 year included President Melody King, Vice President Jannette Hennekes, Secretary Carolyn Muir, and Treasurer Yumi Kumano. An average of 15 people attended the montly meetings, making for a small, but involved, group. Hennekes summed up the year's events, "It was hard to plan anything major, because we never knew if there would be enough people to carry it off! It was, let's say, a challenge."

ICT Students Split Learning Between Classroom, Work

Dividing their time between classes and a part-time job, Industrial Cooperative Training students were able to work while learning, or learn while working, according to their preference. On-the-job training enabled these people to get a head start in learning marketable skills helpful in the job hunt after graduation.

In addition to group sports such as basketball and football, members held an Employer Appreciation Banquet in the spring to thank their respective employers. These pupils also vied for recognition in their trades through local, state, national, and international competitions. ICT students who performed well enough to contend for the international title traveled to Austria to demonstrate their attained skills.

Homemakers' Projects Include Providing Daycare For Local Needy Children

Not just cooking and sewing, FHA (Future Homemakers of America) taught students about home and community improvement.

FHA members hoped to contribute to their own community by providing needed services to the people of that area. By making napkin holders and gifts, they cheered up the elderly in nursing homes. In addition, the group provided presents and daycare for the needy children of Irving in nursery schools.

In the spring, FHA traveled to Tyler and Dallas for its Regional and National Meeting, respectively. The members took the opportunity to speak competitively over the various homemaking subjects such as cooking and cleaning. These students met people in different chapters from all over the United States. Receiving the chance to experience the activities of other chapters, they shared recipes and held councils with each other.

HERO Sponsored Smokeout Helped Students Kick Habit

By providing experience in food service, child care, and basic homemaking skills HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) taught young people leadership and communication.

With the help of sponsors Mary Lou Knoerzer and Sally Roberts, HERO participated in activities and competed with other HERO chapters in homemaking skills.

On November 21, the group sponsored the Great American Smoke Out designed to help people quit smoking. Members also visited an old tolks' home in hopes of helping or cheering up the senior citizens.

HERO members elected the following officers: President Monique Belzung. Vice President Roni Albin. Secretary Christy Sitz. Treasurer Joe Ingram. Reporter Historian Lee O'Conner. and Parliamentarian Social Chairman Paula McClenny.

Office Skills Prepare Students to Compete For Career Placement

VOCCT! Vocational Office Career Clubs of Texas contained both young men and women learning office skills to better prepare them for the competitive job market by giving them experience with office equipment.

The organization, headed by Virginia Bowden, consisted of students enrolled in ODP (Office Duplication Practices). The people were trained in the use of a typewriter, calculator, thuid duplicator, and memeograph-offset press. They competed in several area contests, offering projects—for judging. The class also made Christmas tags and personalized note pads which they sold as part of their fund raising projects.

The club consisted of two separate groups, those students making up the first and second periods and those making up titth and sixth. This prompted Bowden to hold officer elections which yielded two presidents. Tracy Henderson for morning periods and Kami Stroyick for the alternoon.

VOCT – another one of those confusing acronyms one sees all over school – pertained to the club (Vocational Opportunities Clubs of Texas) formed by GMR (General Mechanical Repair).

The organization concentrated on teaching students how to diagnose minor engine malfunctions. Their curriculum included learning how to repair small engines, weld, and maintain an automobile. After completing their training, the students were allowed to enter UIL sponsored events. The contests gave them a chance to compete in categories ranging in anything from tool identification to engine disassembly and reassembly. As a class they worked on building two engines from the ground up.

VOCT also repaired engines for Irving residents, which sometimes resulted in small contributions.

Co-op Students Work 15 Hours Weekly for Credit

Education Cooperative Training, better known as CVAE Co-op, was a course in which students developed their maturity and responsibility while establishing on-the-job training. They earned three credits per year by working a minimum of 15 hours per week, or two credits per year with ten hours of work per week. The class was open to all students at least 16 years of age with the approval of the coordinator.

Coordinated Vocational Academic

In addition to class and job experiences, students participated in contests that required them to fill out job applications, have interviews, and give prepared as well as extemporaneous speeches. Elections were held in each class, resulting with Steve Morris and Susan Boyd the new presidents for the first and second period, respectively.

Marketing, Retail Training Offered To DE Students

Marketing and Distributive Education prepared students for careers in areas such as retail sales, food marketing, and warehousing. The students concentrated on several areas of study. The class emphasized personal and communication skills as well as an understanding of the private enterprise system.

Enrollment in this program automatically made students members of the Distributive Education Clubs of America, better known as DECA. The Club, headed by President Teresa Goyette, sponsored fund raising events. By providing continuing opportunities for student recognition and awards. DECA motivated students to assume responsibility for self-improvement and self-discipline.

VOE, OEA, Combined, Offer Training, Planning For Office Related Jobs

In Vocational Office Education (VOE), students prepared for future careers by learning such skills as word processing, data entry, and general telephone techniques. Offered to any student with an interest in office work, one year of high school typing served as the only prerequisite.

Holding a job was also an important part of the class, and students worked a minimum of 15 hours per week in positions such as bank clerks, receptionists, and personnel clerks, "Most students came to the class with a definite career in mind," VOE Sponsor Jane Sutton remarked, "but I didn't believe they should be limited to one certain area." Consequently, the course provided many opportunities for students to learn to operate equipment that might not have had a direct bearing on their plans for the near future.

In addition to class, each individual belonged to the Office Education Associattion (OEA), a club also sponsored by Sutton, "OEA reinforced leadership as well as human relation skills." Sutton explained. The club collectively sponsored fund raising events to pay for the Employer Appreciation Luncheon and contest expenses. Participation in competitive events was greatly encouraged for here students displayed their talents in areas testing typing, accounting, and shorthand as well as their poise during job interviews and extemporaneous speeches.

Print Shop Kept Busy With District Forms Programs, Newspapers

Print Shop found itself swarmed with numerous important assignments during the 1985-1986 school year.

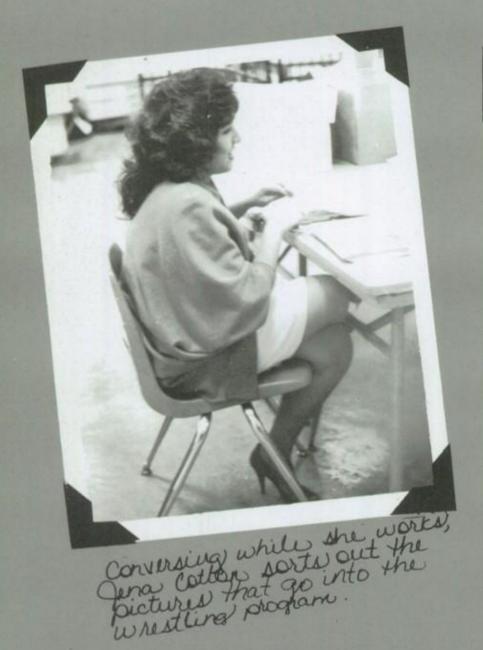

The shop, the only one of its kind in the Irving School District, held such responsibilities as printing football programs, student directories, and school newspapers. Another major task at hand proved to be the printing of all district forms, and programs for all three high school baccalaureate and commencement programs.

 Instructors Richard Jourdan and Joe Mahan graded the students on their attitudes and production, which enhanced their skills.

The Printing Department also sponsored the Vocational Industrial Clubs of American (VICA), a 25 member strong organization.

'Banner Year' Predicted By Art Club Sponsors After Successful Drive

Participation proved to be the most important element in creating a strong Art Club. After a successful membership drive, Sponsors Anna Kirkland and Linda Cross predicted a banner year.

Since anyone interested in artistic pursuits could join the club, many students, both in and out of classes, paid the $3 yearly dues. Sponsors and officers alike felt that the 76 members had more fun and fellowship because so many participated in the planned activities. Officers included President Stephanie Sandberg, Vice President Deanna Lusk, Secretary Kathleen Prawdzik, Treasurer Jay Billingsley, and Reporter Shelly Smith.

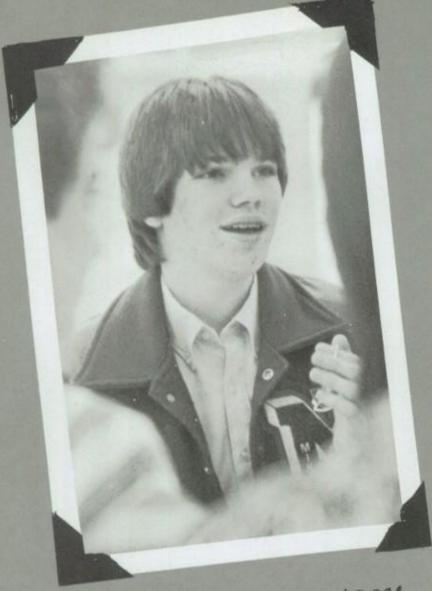

Billingsley hosted the first Art Club meeting in October to map out the year's activities. Other events included bake and craft sales, a Christmas Party, and a logo-design contest for the club's sweatshirts.

"SADD was there. Help, information, and friendship were offered to all who needed it," commented Students Against Drunk Drivers' speaker Ed Leach. Sponsor Linda Bramhall described the organization by saying, "Our main purpose was to be a surveyor of information and to help people."

The membership remained low. The number ranged from 10 to 15 students with six returning from last year. Officers included President Michael Schreiber, Vice President Kelly Hart, and Secretary Alison Holcomb.

Several of the organizations' activities included key chain sales, which grossed $200. In addition, the group met for a city-wide information session with the help from other local sponsors of SADD.

Club Lacks Opponents But Competition Need Filled Among Members

A player moves his knight to capture the opponent's queen, and checkmate! The crowd goes wild! May be not to this extent, but winning almost always gives the victor a teeling of satisfaction difficult to describe. Robert Jameson and his Chess Club generated this feeling everytime they came together to play.

The group met periodically on Tuesdays to challenge each other to a game of chess.

Even though they enjoyed getting together, a problem still remained. The club only played among themselves. They have found no opponents for the past five years and were unable to do so again this year. This disappointed the members little as they still played chess with one another and improved their skills.

Photographers Record History Of School While Becoming Involved in Various Activities

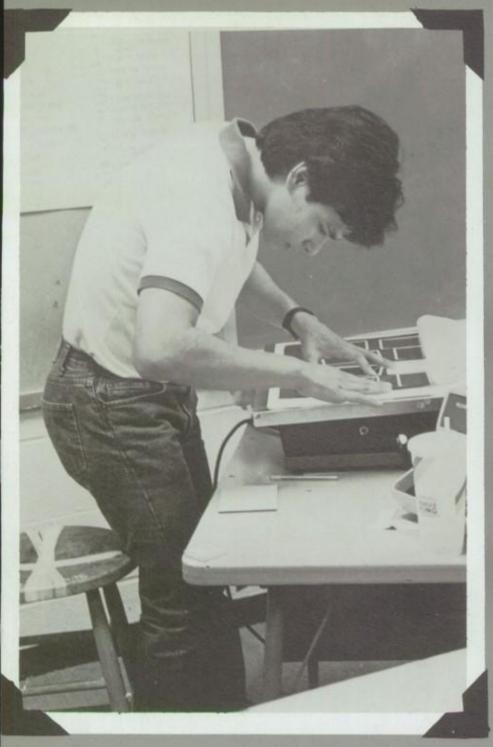

Photographers proved to be one group of people in whom students placed their trust to record memories of their high school days.

Students found a number of advantages in taking the class. Not only did it provide valuable experience for those pursuing careers in the the field, but it also gave students a way to have fun while learning. In addition, the class offered photographers a way to involve themselves in various extra-curricular activities.

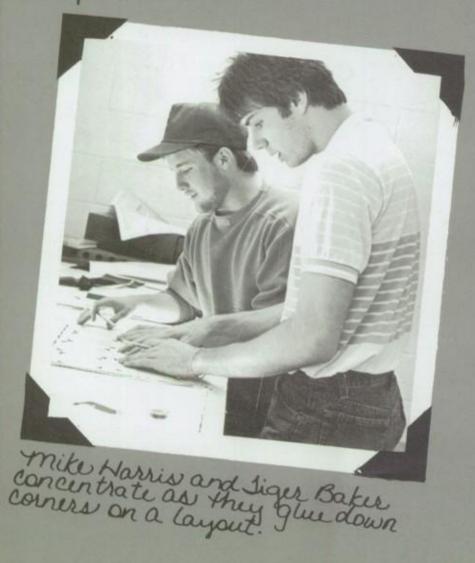

The job of photographer also carried along with it many social advantages. Photographers found they made friends they never knew existed. Equipped with a camera, a photographer had little difficulty in finding models.

Contrary to popular belief, however, photographers claimed that the job did not consist of all fun and games. Required to use two rolls of 24 exposure film per week. 48 total pictures, photographers learned to cope with the pressures of meeting deadlines. Advisor Johnny N. Heard then graded the photos, based on both quantity and quality.

Senior Devin Droemer proclaimed, "Although photography required a lot or work, the advantages were greater. I had a terrific time in the class. I met many new people and learned things I never knew until I enrolled in photography."

Deadlines Pressure Students Who Expected 'Blow-Off' Class In Publications Production

Students expecting a "blow-off" class in Publications Production received quite a surprise once the year began.

Under the command of Co-Editors Mike Harris and Jeff Bell, the staff began learning their responsibilities. Bell exclaimed, "At the beginning of the year, Mike and I had to familiarize each new person with the flow of things. The responsibilities were tough, but once they learned the techniques, the work seemed to be easier." Harris added, "Sometimes it turned out to be a complicated and frustrating job, but once the new people caught on to what they had to do, things started to run smoothly. It was fun to become acquited with the staff and help them learn the ropes of production."

The main priority of the staff began with the not so simple task of making the yearbook and newspaper ready for printing. At times, one mistake meant starting an entire page process over again. Deadlines pressured the staff and caused them to work during the Christmas holidays and on several Saturdays. Harris explained, "The tasks we performed didn't sound difficult, but they required a great amount of time and effort. The greatest part of the class was seeing the results of your work serving as a major foundation and backbone for both the newspaper and the yearbook."

year with the same style that editorsin-chief originated during the 1984-1985 printing. Brent Chamblee, Craig Stadler, Chris Tatum, and Kendra Wells served as editors with Chamblee and Stadler holding their positions for the second consecutive year.

Having Chamblee and Stadler as editors two years in a row proved beneficial for the staff. The editors completed layout designs and constructed story ideas early by passing on much of the material from the 1984-1985 school year.

The staff, itself, received story assignments which needed to be completed within a week. The short deadlines made writing especially Seniors

The 1985-1986 MA Cazine began its difficult, because the writers were faced with the problem of scheduling interviews and writing without sufficient information, but most of the stories were completed on time. After the MACazine's printing, the staff reverted to the task of selling. Each writer sold papers to students in the different classes assigned to them.

Intructor Johnny N. Heard commented that the 1985-1986 MACazine proved to be 100% better in the field of copy and layouts. Tonya Cruze, editor-in-chief of special issues, contributed to Heard's opinion by producing editions aimed at the Cardette Anniversary, Homecoming, Christmas, Valentines, and the

Crest Editors Plan '86 Book During Hot Summer Months To Make Year Work Smoother

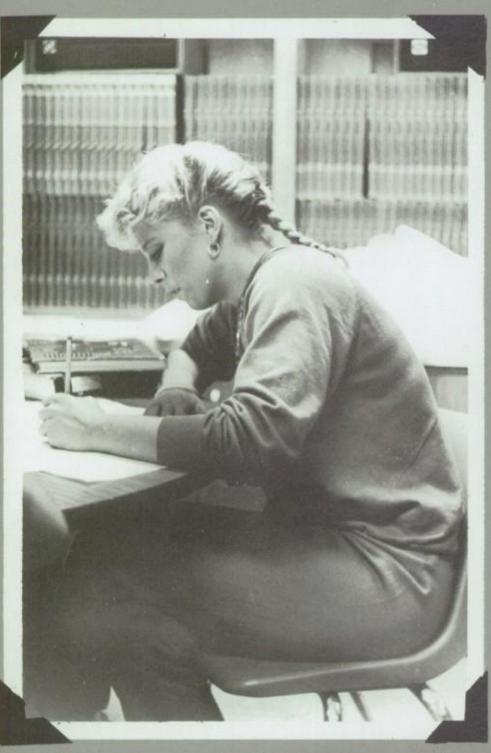

For most students, school began on September 2, with the exception of the 1985-1986 Crest editors, who started off their year in August. Polly Amason, Albert Jarrell, and Toby Richardson, appointed editors-inchief during the previous school year, spent numerous late summer nights eating Doritos and discussing possible yearbook themes at Advisor Johnny N. Heard's home.

Although the year went fairly smooth, problems did arise. Heard corrected layouts which resulted in the repetition of redesigning and redrawing. After long hours and much wasted paper, the layouts finally passed the test.

In the past, unfinished assignments needed completion on Saturdays. Due to hard work and positive results, more became completed without the use of Saturdays. "We didn't spend as much time working on Saturdays because we were getting more accomplished during school hours." Amason explained. "We were pleased with the staff's results."

The staff consisted mainly of writers, who began their year the second six weeks after receiving their assignments for the first semester. "I left this year's writers were a step ahead of last year's. We had more of a variety in writing styles and this, together with better reporting habits, produced quality copy," remarked Copy Editor Jeff Greer.

'Who Is Our Sponsor, Now?' Drama Club Members Asked After Third Introduced to Group

The removal of two practice rooms for the addition of two offices—one for a policeman and one for Jan Hahn, campus facilitator—served as not the only change that required adjustment for the Drama Club.

"Who's our sponsor now?" cried Secretary Margo Griffith. The organization had three sponsors: Mathew Rodriguez, Nancy Rudderow, and Lauralee Ingram. Along with other hardships, the change in sponsors caused the club's planned production of A Christmas Carol to be cancelled. Sonja Davis sighed, "It's been rough, but we did considerably well even with changes."

Members also excelled at tournaments where they had a chance to compete with actors from different schools. From competition at Irving High School, John Money and Scott Ballant brought home first place in duet acting, while Eric Jensen and Samantha Robinson took third.

Other activities included bake sales, and ice cream social, and Halloween and Christmas parties. In addition, the club held their traditional haunted house at the Golden Triangle Bowling Alley, which raised over $600.

Area High Schools Aid Mac's Newly Formed Spirit Club Organize

School spirit received a boost as the newly organized Spirit Club encouraged students to show their enthusiasm at football pep rallies from pre-season to the playoffs.

From a laid-back surfer to a tough. intimidating Rambo, the feathered fashion plate changed images from week to week. He also dressed for the themes of certain games, such as a wizard to hex MoJo, a SuperCard to foil other playoff foes, and even a top hat and tux for Homecoming. "I thought it would be good to be original from week to week, and I thought the fans liked it too." commented Sinclair. When asked, "Why Victor?" he replied. ## Squad Attends Summer Camp To Learn New Cheers, Chants For 1985-1986 Sports Season

Cheerleaders encouraged spirit and promoted enthusiasm all over the school. However, cheering required more reponsibility than simply jumping and yelling.

The varsity squad consisted of Polly Amason, Brenda Chamblee, Allison Chaney, Kelly Harris, Melinda Hattox, Marilee King, Nichole Nichols, Amy Parkey, Joanna Patton, Beckey Phillips, Bud Polston, and Libby Schnee. Angela Ellard, Kim Barnes, Sara Harvey, Shanna Kinsey, Kirsten Kruger, Lisa Tappen, Angie Taylor, and Allison White made up the JV group.

Both squads, however, found it necessary to uphold certain averages and policies. To try out for cheerleader, a candidate needed a B average, effective throughout the season. The girls and boys cheered at all sports events except for baseball and track, participated in pep rallies, and led Booster Club on Tuesday evenings.

During the summer both squads attended camps where they learned cheers, chants, and stunts. In addition, they attended workshops and participated in various competitions with awards and spirit sticks for prizes. The cheerleaders held summer practice before camp and afterwards from 6:30 until 8:30 am.

Members Keep 'Young' in 'Life' As Appropriate Motto for Group Interested in Positive Side of Life

proved to be an appropriate motto from members of the organization. Concentrating on Christian fellowship, the club promoted the positive side of adolescence.

Younglife flourished, as up to 50 members actively participated in Monday night meetings. October saw Juniors Libby Schnee and Monica Whitney capture a trip to Padre Island for their portrayal of an elderly couple at the annual Halloween Party. Another highlight came when over 100 members took to the slopes of Utah over Christmas break. Senior

Keeping the "young" in "life" Jay Billingsley relayed, "Younglife was a great experience wherever we were, but the usual songs and skits plus skiing made for an unbeatable combination."

Although Younglife functioned as a national organization, leaders came about on a strictly volunteer basis. MacArthur facilitators included Tim MacNamara, John Ruteledge, Janet Caldwell, and Heidi Hasfjord. Junior Beckey Phillips insisted, "Tim and the rest of the leaders deserved so much credit. # FCA Keeps Inspiration Of Athletes Key Factor For Group's Endeavors

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) continued to uphold the athletic inspiration that influenced MacArthur athletes in previous years.

The boys huddle, sponsored by Carl Childers and Mike Cranfill, hosted the following slate of officers: President Mike Loftus. Vice President Kris Germany, Secretary Donald Driscoll, and Treasurer Pat Sullivan Under the direction of Suzy Oelschlegel and Judy Blylock, the girls huddle possessed not official officers, but were led by the efforts of Shannon Small and Kathy Zamarano.

More often than not, both groups joined together to carry out planned events. All FCA members received invitations to attend the SMU vs Arkansas Football Game as game day witnesses, a tradition of several years hence. Other activities included pizza meetings and a Christmas dinner at the home of Kathy and Roland Zamarano.

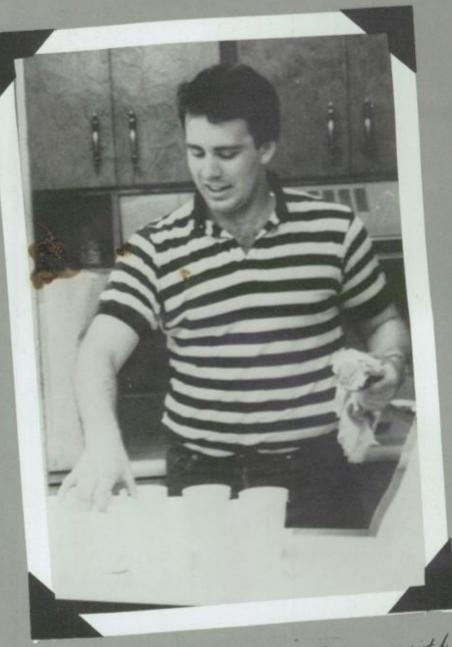

FCA also offered a special chance to see and hear TCU Head Coach Jim Wacker speak. Wacker's talk inspired many at Winterfest, an annual event at the First Baptist Church in Euless.

Student Council, Senators Work To Mend '85 Attendance Lapse; Progress Goals Reached in '86

With hopes of making up for last year's lapse in attendance and progress, which was blamed on House Bill 72, the 1985-1986 Student Council officers and senators gritted their teeth and produced a successful year.

The members kicked off their terms by helping with last year's Spring Fever Week. Four of the group. President Kara Wickham, Secretary Jana Wickham, and Senators Darren Arterbury and Steve Mayhew, then traveled to Austin on Prom Weekend to attend the State Student Council Convention. Along with students from all over the state, they learned methods of improving schools. Jana Wickham commented, "Besides having a lot of fun, we were given pointers on how to improve our schools."

With the passing of summer, both the officers and senators commenced in planning various projects for the new year. As Homecoming approaced, however, the student body saw the council shift into high gear. Money was raised through the annual spirit chain sale competition and the selling of spirit items such as ribbons. megaphones, and stickers. Homecoming Dance, which included a reception for graduates, ended the festivities. Serving as Disc Jockey, Publicity Chairman Chris Ratcliff explained. "We had a great amount of response from everyone in making this year's Homecoming one to be remembered."

Consequently, the most rewarding project for everyone proved to be Project Child. The last day of school, before Christmas break, needy children enhanced the halls with smiles of delight. Jana Wickham exclaimed, "It was really fun and especially rewarding to see the faces of the kids as they received their gifts; but when they left, it seemed like they had done more for us than we had done for them."

The council continued their work through various other projects, both profitable and non-profitable. These included, among others, the Carnation Sales, the Blood Drive, and teacher appreciation activities. Kara Wickham commented. "Throughout the year, we were blessed with a great amount of participation and hard work from everyone. This has been one of the most successful years in the history of our school. Everyone did a great job." Vice President Mark Newton, Secretary Jana Wickham, Treasurer Albert Jarrell, Publicity Chairman Chris Ratcliff, Parliamentarian Jeff Greer, Chaplain Melanie Hallmark, and Historian Allison Chaney all agreed.

Class of '89 Challenges Seniors for Top Spot In Spirit Competition

People are the key ingredient to creating a successful pep rally, and this year offered no exception.

Seniors had always been leaders of the school in the category of spirit. But this year the Class of '86 had competition staring at them from the opposite upper side of the Field House. The Freshmen, showing enthusiasm in signs, wigs, and painted shirts, continuously challenged the Seniors, who carried out their fire truck theme in overalls and siren hats.

The Cardettes also broke tradition as they became more theme oriented and added costumes to spice up their routines. To keep in touch with the summer, the girls went Hawaiian with Jamms and sunglasses as they danced to the Beach Boys' "Barbara Ann". The Cardettes went all out to promote their toga dance as they performed a routine to "Louie, Louie".

Tradition Accompanied Competition, Sentiment During Homecoming

The tradition, competition, and sentimentality which accompany Homecoming received a further boost by the theme of "Mac to the Future." The theme helped students incorporate past and future into the present during Homecoming Week.

The first order of business proved to be wall decorations as volunteers began work Monday and concluded late Thursday night on their cafeteria walls. For the second consecutive year, treshman enthusiasm shone brightly in winning the contest.

Homeroom classes also worked together to produce original door designs fitting the theme. Nancy Key's homeroom captured first place for their eye-catching decor. Nancy Cowart won second.

The Spirit Chain Contest found class officers petitioning fellow classmen for donations. The Sophomores won the competition, with the Freshmen coming in a close second. Third and tourth places went to the Seniors and Juniors, respectively.

After Athletic Events Dances Provided Fun, Added to Treasuries

School dances provided for an evening of fun in which students came together with their classmates and went crazy.

The prime time for dancing seemed to be after home football games. The Senior Class, Booster Club, PTA, National Honor Society, and Cardettes each sponsored their own dance. Chris Ratcliff acted as disc jockey for most of the occasions. The Cardettes added a different kind of flair with a Toga Dance.

The Booster Club sponsored another dance after a basketball game.

To raise money, the Juniors and Sophomores held dances with themes. The Juniors threw a Mid-Winter Dance with Derek Welch as the DJ. The Sophomores retaliated with a Valentine's Dance, DJ'd by Todd Davis.

"Take one . . . and . . . action!" On March 27, drama students traveled to South Grand Prairie High School to participate with other area schools in the UIL One-Act Play Contest.

The 40 minute Elizabethan play, entitled Ralph Roister Doister, provided the cast with an opportunity to display their acting skills. Sponsor Laura Lee Ingram remarked, "The group did a superb job and made this a memorable year for me."

The plot of Ralph Roister Doister revolves a rather unlucky man named Ralph and the problems he encounters after falling in love with a beautiful lady. He unsuccessfully attempts to win her love by bombarding her with gifts such as a big poster of himself and an intimate love letter. When all else fails, he even serenades her with Elivis Presley songs. Despite the fact that Ralph never succeeds in winning his lady's love, the play was a definite hit. The cast felt they did well, and the crowd's applause and laughter attested to that.

Jaycees, NHS Sponsor Holiday CHIMES For Needy Citizens

CHIMES (Christmas Helps in Making Everyone Santa) brought 6000 gifts and goods to needy people. The National Honor Society, in conjunction with the Irving Jaycees, organized the event within MacArthur, as well as other high schools.

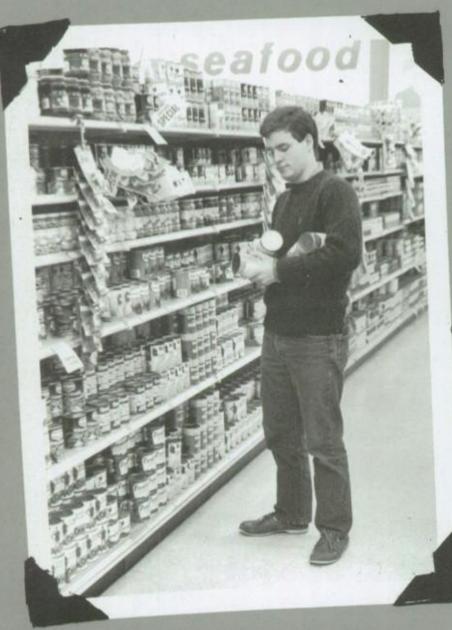

A scavenger hunt proved useful as an event to gather goods for it. Most classes participated in the event by bringing canned goods and other items to place in a decorated box.

The class which brought in the most items received a party, and plaques were awarded. The winners of the contest included Band and Ann Price's Latin homeroom.

Mike Munoz, who played an important part in organizing CHIMES, explained, "I felt that CHIMES was a success because the National Honor Society was able to involve the students in it."

Council's Project Child Brings Toys, Clothing To Needy Youngsters

Each year homeroom classes prepare to throw a party and buy gifts for a needy child at Christmas time. Project Child enabled students to give of themselves in the Christmas spirit.

The classes specified whether they preferred a boy or girl. Then, with a limit set at $70, the students gave money to support the fund. After collecting money, several students from each homeroom went out to purchase toys, clothes, bikes, and other items for their child.

On Friday, December 20, 70 children from Schultz and Lee Britain Elementary Schools arrived at 2:30 pm to be taken to an assigned room for a party. Each of the rooms gave their child the presents and celebrated with pizza and Coke.

Brian Love and Chris Rateliff got into the spirit of things by dressing up as Santa Claus to visit each child and present them with a toy or candy cane. The Band also went around the school playing Christmas Carols for everyone.

Scott Ballant, who participated in Project Child in his class, claimed, "It was a lot of fun for the kids, and it was also fun for us."

Students Donate Blood During Service Project As Gift of Life to Others

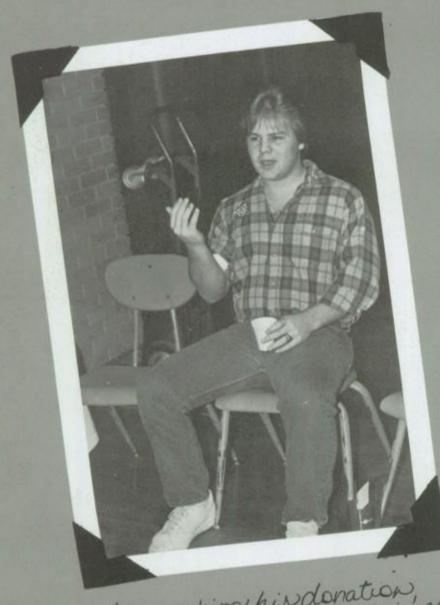

Tuesday. February 18. dawned sunny and warm, yet the beautiful weather did not ease the minds of many of those who were waiting rather nervously to donate blood in MacArthur's Annual Blood Drive. Occurring four days after Valentine's Day, the blood drive concentrated on giving the gift of life.

Students signed up to give blood during the two weeks prior to the blood drive. Donators had to be at least 17 years of age with parents' permission, or 18 years old without.

Before actually giving blood, students had their weight, temperature, and blood type taken. The students then spent an additional five to eight minutes donating thier life-saving fluid. Approximately 50 pints of blood were eventually donated.

Council Sells Flowers For Profit, Pleasure On Valentine's Day

Valentine's Day is a day for love, for telling someone you care. On Friday. February 14, students received carnations sold by the Student Council.

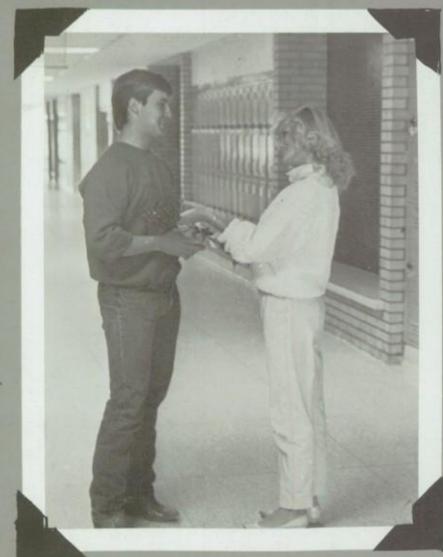

The carnation sales took place the two weeks prior to Valentine's Day. During this time, approximately 850 flowers were sold at $1 a piece. The morning of delivery, student council officers and senators arrived at school at 6:45 to attach messages to the wide variety of flowers.

Unfortunately, this was one of the least successful years in the history of carnation sales. Most students, as well as teachers, however, enjoyed the flower delivery.

The 60c per flower profit went into the Student Council Fund. This fund was used throughout the year for various student council projects.

Bake Sales Held Often To Satisfy Appetites, Fill Empty Treasuries

A new day, a new bake sale. Although students may have grown tired of daily bake sale announcements, various clubs and organizations never turned down a chance to hold one of the successful fund raisers.

Leading in profits with three sales was the Spanish Club. Their Valentine bake-off alone brought fundings to $500, a percentage of which the club sent to a Mexican foster child.

Likewise, the French Club also prospered from a sale with a theme. The Homecoming goodies they baked netted $200, which went towards the relief of an African child.

Also in the baking business, the Drama Department sponsored a sale to supprt the year's theatrical productions. Financing their employee/employer banquet propelled HECE's sale. ROTC took a different approach to bake sales. In addition to selling treats during school lunches, they took their merchandise to a neighborhood K-Mart.

Vacant Parking Lots Fill With Cars, Suds As Clubs Make Profit

Take one vacant parking for and about 100 cars, saturate both with suds and water and what do you get? Super, fund-raising car washes for clubs and organizations. A profitable way for students to have fun, the washes enjoyed a huge success.

A cold Saturday in February served as the setting for the ROTC money maker. The group endured a six hour session of soapy fun and enormous profits. Helping in their financial endeavor were a bake sale and a garage sale, both handled by the cadets. The money raised totaled $507, and was put to use securing Disc Jockey Joe Folger to host the annual Military Ball. ROTC Leader Cathy Cowart commented, "It was really great to see all our hard work pay off. That made the Ball even more special."

The bands also made use of the school parking lot—holding their car wash in late April. After two postponements, the wash finally went on to produce funds for a May banquet.

Parties Play Major Role In Activating Clubs During School Year

Parties played a significant role in several clubs to encourage, initiate, and activate members throughout the year.

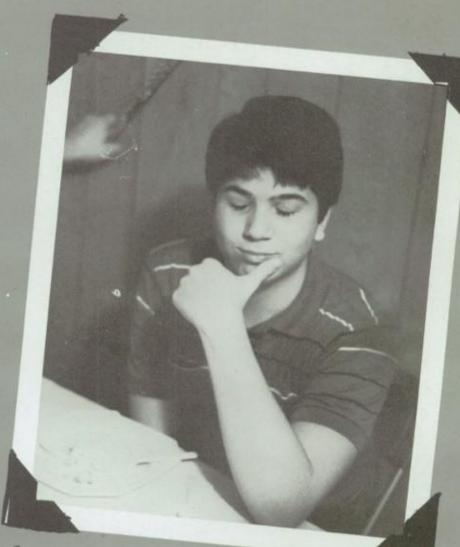

Ice cream socials in Latin and Drama Clubs served as season openers, appealing to high school students' sweet tooth as the clincher. After these proved successful, other clubs marked parties and related activities on their calendars. Halloween parties, provided by National Honor Society, German Club, and Drama Club sparked large turnouts with members dressed as favorite costumed characters. Festivities of the evening beheld a scavanger hunt seeking items from hair pins to matches.

Football, Cardettes Banquet in Cafeteria To Finalize Seasons

Saturday evening. January 11, in the South Cafeteria, well-dressed young men and their dates awaited the start of the 1985-1986 Football Banquet.

Each team member, including the junior varsity and freshman squads, shared his moment in the spotlight as he received recognition.

In appreciation for their help throughout the season, the football captains presented all ten coaches and Trainer Justin Walker with gold nugget Texas rings. To top off the evening, Dale Hansen from Channel 8 Sports appeared as the guest speaker. Winding down, the night closed with a slide presentation portraying the 1985 season.

On January 18, Junior and Senior Cardettes assembled in the beautifully decorated North Cafeteria to finalize the 1985 football season.

The dinner, catered by Estelle's of Irving, offered a wide variety of Mexican favorites.

While dining by candlelight, the evening progressed with the recognition of the 1985-1986 leaders and officers. Junior Stacey Ashworth received the award of Rookie of the Year. Other awards included: Most Valuable Cardette, which went to Coffey; Cardette of the Year, awarded to Stacy Rushing; and Cardette Beau, received by Coach Ray Overton.

Athletics, Organizations Hold Festive Banquets To End Year's Activities

"Eat, drink, and be merry," served as the motto for numberous banquets held by both organizations and athletics.

The Christmas holidays provided the perfect setting for the Girls' Cross Country Team to end their season celebrating at Baby Doe's Matchless Mine.

With much haste, boy's basketball invaded the Trail Dust Steak House. Junior Tiger Baker remarked, "The food was great, but we could hardly hear each other talk. At least we didn't have to wear ties." In addition, the State Quarterfinalist Girls' Basketball Team enjoyed the luxuries of their success at the Southern Kitchen.

Soccer held a unique dual banquet at the Crowne Plaza with boys and girls members attending. A special treat came when one of the girls' dates turned out to be Tatu, the star player for the Dallas Sidekicks. The Varsity Cheerleaders also romped their way to the Fairmont Hotel for the closing ceremonies. Senior Polly Amason elaborated. "I had a great time, but it was also sad. The Juniors made it something to remember with the slide show."

The Latin Club kicked off the spring banquet circuit with its annual bash at Old Spaghetti Warehouse. Sponsor Ann Price's students sported togas for the occasion, with Jeannie Hartman and Jeff Daniels winning the contest for original Roman attire.

Both the Spanish Club and varsity tennis squad chose the popular site of Jeremiah's in Las Colinas to host their banquets. The Gymnastics Team, meanwhile, enjoyed the home-style buffet of Southern Kitchen. In addition, Drama Club members donned more formal attire for their celebration at the Adolphus Hotel.

The German Club selected a more ethnic route as they caravanned to Hans Mueller. German food and dancing entertained the members and their escorts as Katherine Bongfledt and Phil Webb earned beau and sweetheart honors.

Royal Splendor Seen In Peru, Great Britain As 42 Students Travel

Spring Break not only offered a chance to get away from school, it gave 42 students the opportunity to explore a little of the world.

Publications Advisor Johnny N. Heard, for the twelfth year, history teacher Bette Salter, and Latin instructor Ann Price sponsored a group of students on a venture to Peru.

After spending the night in Lima, the capital city, the group flew to Cusco, located in the Andes Mountains.

The group then ventured to the fabled site of Machu Picchu, considered one of the lost Inca cities. Senior Chris Ratcliff explained, "This was the highlight of the entire trip. It was hard to imagine that a civilization was able to build the city and then thrive in it."

Toward the end of their week's stay, the students traveled to Paracas, a coastal village. From this point, they went by boat to a group of islands where sea lions and birds were abundant.

Art Director Anna Kirkland took her students in the opposite direction: across the Atlantic to England and Scotland.

"Of course, Westminster Abbey, the Tower of London, and St. Paul's Cathedral will always stand out in my mind as being the fantastic sites of the trip," explained Sean Kirkland.

Council Provides Week Of Spring Fun, Fashion

Around the end of the year, when the weather became just right, students' minds started to stray from their studies and look for a change. In order to rest these hard-working brains, but not get too out of hand, the Student Council provided Spring Fever Week.

Spring Fever Week brought both new fashion and fun to all students. The first day was chosen for slobs all over the school to unite, and dress in their slobby attire. Tuesday, the Student Council urged supporters to don red and white for the Annual Spring Game. Next came Wednesday, and dress-up day seemed only natural on Awards Day. On Thursday. College Shirt Day, let both Seniors and underclassmen take a look toward their future. Finally, Friday dressed students in Hawaiian garb, proving that vacation time was just a week away.

ROTC Queen Named As Part of Tradition During Military Ball

As Commander Greg Darr ordered, "Draw sabers! Present sabers!" Queen and Honorary Lieutenant Colonel nominees of the ROTC Corps proceeded through the lines of the Saber Guard to be recognized at the Military Ball. Having chosen Ramada Inn as the location for the ball, the festivities took place on March 15 at 7 pm.

Among the night's events lay dinner, dance, and the annual crowning of the ROTC Queen. Senior Commander Leticia Maldanado led her corps in recognizing Tina Smith as Queen, and Tony Callahan as Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of the evening.

"A major significance of the Ball was in keeping with tradition," relayed Battalion Executive Mona Banker. "In addition, the Ball was to enable everyone to have fun. It offered a chance for the cadets to socialize and better acquaint themselves with their leaders." As an almost insistance on group participation, a dance was enacted. #### Seniors Gather at Las Colinas For Breakfast as Final Function

As the Class of '86 cagerly awaited the final days of their high school tenure, the traditional Senior Breakfast provided one more opportunity for food and fellowship.

Seniors congregated at the lavish Las Colinas Country Club on May 16 from 7:30 to 9:15 am for their early morning buffet. Held in the newly completed Grand Ball Room, the breakfast served as the last senior class function before graduation. Although a coat and tie affair, the relaxed atmosphere gave students the chance to eat and converse at their own pace.

Despite the absence of an official program or speaker, various senior class sponsors, Principal Paul Burke, Assistant Principal Lane Ladewig, Norma Miksovsky, and Betty Munday also attended. Ladewig commented. "This was quite enjoyable for us compared to the hectic pace of prom. I think it also rewarded all the Seniors who worked so hard to raise money for prom." Colleen Grimes summed things up by exclaiming, "The breakfast was great! I wish we could have a senior luncheon, too."

Throughout the week of April 7, posters adorned the school walls proclaiming everything was Cheaper by the Dozen. That is, of course, if you were talking about the Senior Play.

Set in the 1920's, this comedy provided ample challenges for both cast and crew ranging from how to find costumes to how to decorate the house. Director Pam Willis remarked, "We worked hard and our effort showed. I was very pleased with the end result."

The cast was also happy with how the play went. Gamboa said, "Cheaper by the Dozen was really an enjoyable play to do. It was funny, but it also had meaning."

Wickham's presentation led the way for Danielle Gamboa's speech as Valedictorian. Gamboa felt positive about her oration, "The Paths We Travel". ### Coach Aims to Keep Team 'On Their Toes, in Top Shape Mentally Ready' for Season

"Keeping my team on their toes, in shape, and mentally ready..." That summed up the 1985 strategy for Head Volleyball Coach Traci Benesh. Beginning with participation in a summer league and continuing through the school year with weight training, exercises, and conditioning, the Varsity Volleyball Team tried to activate a new approach toward the sport.

Commencing the season in the middle of August, the team battled out 25 games. Benesh's group managed a 7-18 record for 1985, which included beating rival Irving High for the third year in a row. Team members agreed that Benesh brought about positive, much needed changes concerning attitude and player availability.

"Grades, injuries, and lack of concern kept many of last year's and this year's more experienced players off the court," commented all district player Tracy Walls, "But, with this more serious approach, I believe that Coach Benesh will lead many championship teams over the years."

While most students tried to pry their eyes open and get ready for school, the Girls' Cross Country Team had already finished a three mile workout. After school many breathed a sigh of relief, but both Boys' and Girls' Cross Country Teams remained at school to sweat out more miles.

These practices prepared runners for rigorous competition during Saturday morning meets held at Las Colinas. The endurance needed in the 3.2 mile runs also require much mental stamina. ### Eighth Grade Superiors Bring Strong Attitudes, Determination To Freshman Football Team

The title of Freshman brought with it a jump from eighth grade superiority to ninth grade inferiority, but strong attitudes and determination left the Freshman Football Team with few regrets.

Although left with a 4-5 record, the Freshman adjusted to new teammates and techniques remarkably well, as Coach Ray Overton commented, "The Freshman had a really good year. I was very pleased with their overall work on the field."

An exciting boost came when the Cardinals defeated Nimitz, 16-7. Quincy Edwards and Ross Ronan provided strong efforts in keying the team's win. Edwards stated. "We had a good game with the offensive line doing a great job blocking and moving the ball." Ronan concluded, "We did well allowing only one touchdown, but we still needed to work harder on defense." Offensively, Edwards proved outstanding this past season along with Billy Hughes as an offensive lineman. Defensively, Ronan completed a strong year.

The success of the Varsity Cards in the state playoffs inspired the Freshman Team, which could foresee their own future wins as varsity hopefuls. This provided a spark to the ninth grade Cardinals who were ready to move up the football ladder.

Junior Varsity Football Team Suit-Up With Varsity Squad For Three Playoff Contests

Capping off their season, the Junior Varsity Football Team ended the year's schedule with three wins out of their last four games to finish with a record or 3-6-1.

The JV Cardinals put together a winning combination in the second half of the season by beating both Nimitz and R.L. Turner, and finished the season by shutting out Duncanville. 42-0. They began the season slowly with an 0-5-1 record after losing to Irving in the final seconds of the game. Recalled Running Back Phillip Webb concerning the second half of the season, "We felt we had to turn the season around by winning."

Coach Ray Overton divided his JV squad into two equal teams for a few games. This gave the Juniors and Sophomores a chance to get good game experience before reaching varsity level. Greg Oliver, a Sophomore, agreed, "We thought we had a good season and we got a lot of playing time."

For their services, the coaches allowed them to suit up with the Varsity in three of their playoff games. "It gave us a chance to work with the Varsity in the playoffs, which will help in the future," stated Jim Jarrell.

Coach Overton summed up the importance of the junior varsity program. "The program has helped our varsity playoff team a tremendous amount. More than half of this year's Varsity played JV last year. Our JV should have a great Varsity Team."

Motivation! Revenge! Earn Varsity Cardinals District Playoff Spot

Motivation, revenge, rivalry. All three combined to earn the Cardinals a playoff spot after a hard fought and successful season. Optimistic outlook intact, the Cards began to prepare for the Highland Park Scots.

Both teams played a defensively strong game, but Higland Park emerged a 13-6 winner. MacArthur's only score came when quarterback Shawn Hall connected with David Canchola for a 22 yard touchdown.

The loss to Highland Park affected the Cardinals in a positive way, as they bounced back a week later to defeat the Trinity Trojans, 22-20. Senior Running Back Bill Clark led all rushers with 149 yards on 27 carries.

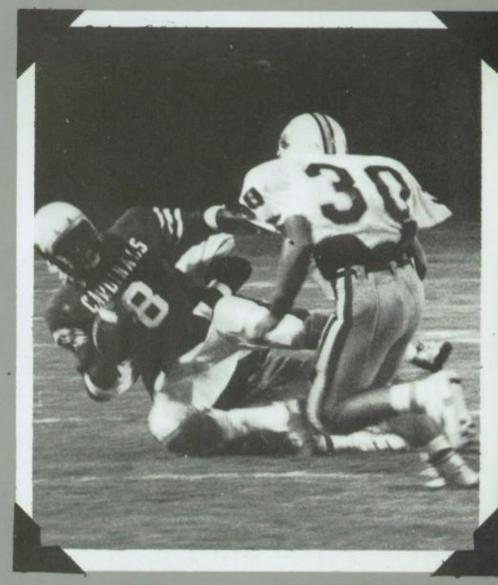

The Cardinals vowed to finish the pre-district series on an up note as they reentereed Irving Schools Stadium for the first time in 1985. They did not tread lightly over the Berkner Rams as the Mac rallied to a 34-7 victory. Sophomore Reggie Finch made an impressive debut carrying for 124 yards on 13 carries. Junior Jason Lowe turned a critical play into a big score as he flipped a bad snap to Finch, who made an 84 yard touchdown.

"MacArthur, playing on the brink of elimination for several weeks, survived for at least another game the ame way it got here with luck andcrappy play," stated The Dallas Morning News after Mac's 16-7 win over Trinity.

MacArthur players resented this statement as Toby Richardson' remarked. "Our win over Trinity was everything but luck. We managed to build a good defensive and running game through sheer determination."

The Cards struck first with a 60 yard reverse punt return from Brian Love. Trinity quickly answered the score with their own touchdown. making the score 7-6 in their favor. Kris Henderson later regained the lead with a 44 yard field goal, but Reggie Finch's 27 yard touchdown scamper served as the game clincher. The stingy Cardinal defense held the Trojans in check for the remainder of the game to seal the 16-7 victory. Defensive Co-ordinator Don Smith remarked. "We were concerned going into the game about Trinity's potent offensive capabilities. I'm pleased with the intensity our guys displayed and the way we shut down their running game. I can't wait to start preparing for next week's opponent and the opportunity to advance further in the playoffs."

Varsity Shouts, 'No Mo MOJO!' In Preparation of Meeting Odessa For State Quarter-Final Playoffs

No Mo MOJO! On to Odessa and the state quarter-finals! MacArthur, with its three playoff wins, tied a record set by Irving High in 1968, in going to the final eight.

The Odessa Permian Panthers presented numerous problems for the Cardinals. As the defending State CoChampions, they carried an undefeated 12-0-1 record into the quarter-finals. Playing in Odessa at Ratliff Stadium did not help much either, for the Panthers had lost only one game there in four years.

All of these factors held little significance, however, for Coach "O's" bunch. Quarterback Shawn Hall turned an option play into a 42 yard touchdown on the second play from scrimmage, and rushed for 125 yards. Tailback Wayne England also had 103 yards, as the Cardinal offense exceeded the 300 mark. But three Cardinal fumbles and two big pass plays by Permian turned the momentum to MOJO's side, giving them a halftime lead of 14-7.

The second half brought more of the same, though, as the Cards marched up and down the field. They penetrated the Permian 25 yard line four times but came away empty handed. MOJO added two more touchdowns and advanced to the semi-finals with a 27-7 win.

The Cardinals' dream season ended at 9-3-2, but most everyone felt that MOJO did not prove to be the superior team. Regardless of the outcome, the Cardinal Football Team of 1985 laid the foundation of a playoff tradition for future generations to build upon.

Starting off rough did not scare the Boys' Junior Varsity Basketball Team. They completed a strong 10-4 season, finishing with a second place tie in District.

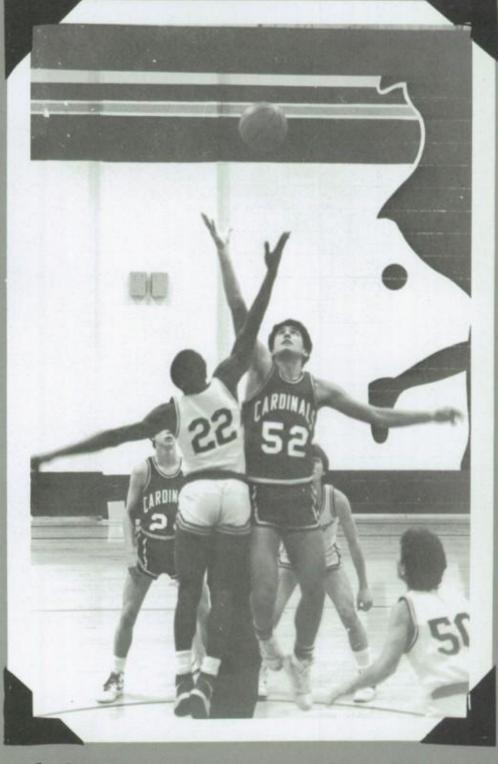

This year's team had a big advantage as Freshman Brian Zvonecek came in to add to the team's talent. Zvonecek, a rookie from Travis, stood six feet, five inches tall. His height proved to be a real boost in scoring and rebounding for the team. "Changing schools was real exciting-especially in basketball. There's a big difference in junior high and high school basketball," he reported.

Along with Zvonecek, his other ' teammates appeared promising with each player contributing to the team's success. Starter Todd Albin Ranked seventh in the beginning of non-district play, the Boys' Varsity Basketball Team struggled to obtain an overall 8-9 record upon entering district competition.

After receiving second place in the Waxahachie Tournament, the Cardinals returned home and took third place honors in the Irving Tournament, However, after playing well in the Greenville Tournament, the team departed with second place in the bag.

One clear disadvantage for the team was the absence of players Chase Deaton, who was forced to sit out because of a broken hand. Shawn Hall and Jason Lowe, who were still involved in post action football play. Ratcliff commented, "In a way it was' good because it gave everyone a chance to play; however, we tended to look into the future at the time when we would have everyone back. Who said a .500 record couldn't be exciting? Well, the Boys' Varsity Basketball Team ended its season with a 7-7 district mark, providing flashes of brilliance in the process.

A rather ominous start began with South Grand Prairie, as the Cards led the entire game, but lost at the buzzer. Newman Smith provided a tough test also, keeping the score tied throughout the game. Following the Irving game. MacArthur hosted the Nimitz Vikings. Setting the tempo for the game, the girls rolled over their opponents, 68-39. In much the same way. Mac emerged victorious over Newman Smith and Grand Prairie each time around.

Losing only to Duncanville and Irving, the Lady Cards secured second place in district standings, along with a spot in the playoffs for the second year in a row. Their outstanding season paved the way to three championships and the road to the State Tournament in Austin.

Nine Qualify for State Tourney; Cardinal Wrestlers Take Second After 12 Meet Wins During Year

Qualifying nine wrestlers for the State Wrestling Tournament left the Cardinal team with a second place standing.

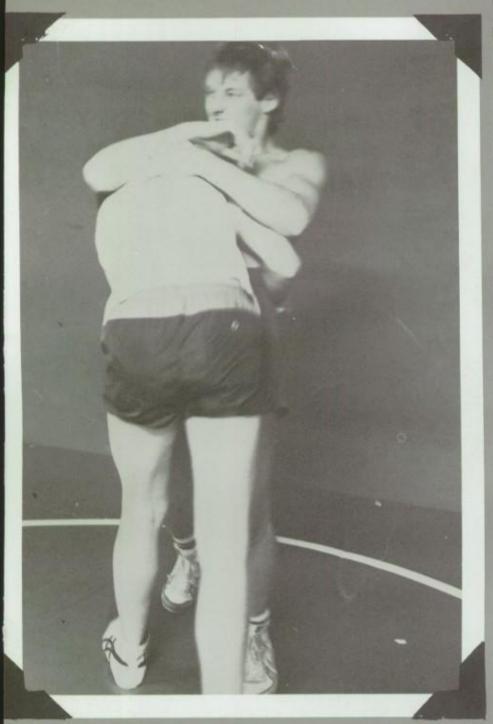

Coach Terry Knouse and his clan of grapplers had an excellent season, winning all 12 dual meets and only losing two tournaments. "We really worked hard this year," exclaimed Junior Fay Barnett. "Everyone put in 100% at every practice."

Working together an aveage of 19 hours a week in practice as well as sharing in a common goal of a state title brought unity to the team. "When you are wrestling, you're concentrating on winning your match—not only for yourself, but for the team," remarked Sergio Reves.

Ending the year in the state finals started as only a goal for the wrestlers, but as the season went on it became a reality. Nine wrestlers went to the State Tournament. Out of the nine, Brad Knouse, Barnett, and Barron Upchurch became state champions in their weight divisions and Shannon Ward took second in his weight class. "It was a good year and everyone worked real hard, but we are already looking forward to next year. All our best wrestlers will return and we should have an even better year," commented Ward.

Ending the year with a record of six wins, one loss, and three ties put the Cardinals in second place position behind Highland Park in district. "Our team had a great season and an excellent chance at first in district. It was disappointment to have to settle for second," exclaimed Greg Stroud.

Darrin Hedges had an excellent season at center mid-field. Hedges, accumulated 27 goals, surpassing the record of the most scored in one season. "It was a goal of mine since the beginning of the season," Hedges admitted. "I knew I was the new record holder and my goal had been achieved when my twenty-seventh goal was made." Stroud, with 21 points, took the place of second leading scorer on the team and Kenneth Galla also had a very good year as goalie.

Returning Seniors Mario Reyes and David VanBuskirk led the Cards on the way to a playoff game with Duncanville. Hedges' one tally against Duncanville, proved not enough as the Panthers overtook the Cardinals two to one in the playoff

New Team, New Head Coach Deems Season as Experimental For Girls' Varsity Soccer Squad

Recruiting provided an interesting twist; one of the recruits was Coach Butch Spruial, who previously coached at Martin High School in Arlington. This combination formulated a group with fresh hopes and goals, showing tremendous potential.

Predictably, the first half of the season proved difficult. The highlight of the season epitomized the competition between Irving teams. Near the end of the district games, MacArthur met Nimitz. Anticipation built in the air as the two shot the ball back and forth without an advantage. The evening ended in a tie, 0-0.

A new team and a new coach Although neither team won, Nimitz remembered with a smile.

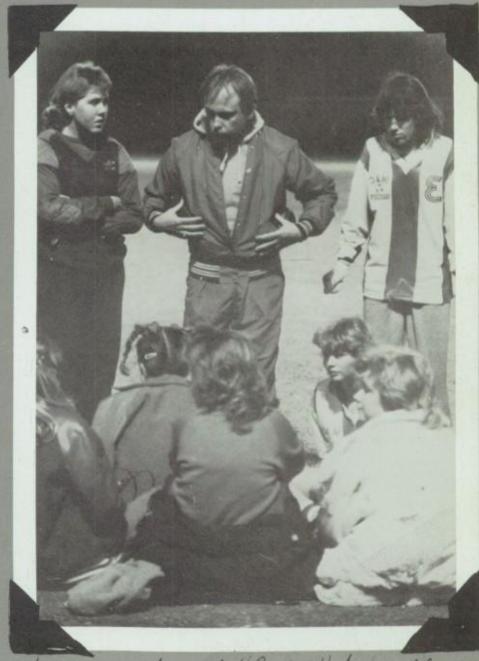

Serving as the team's leader and only Senior, Melanie Hallmark received the first district choice as fullback. Gaining recognition as second district choices, Amy Maudlin and Kristen Gisley played forward and halfback, respectively. Johanna Job also earned a second district choice playing fullback.

Spruial, confident about his second season at MacArthur, planned it competitively. "The Freshmen have the opportunity to learn each other's strengths and weaknesses and that will make tham an excellent team." This statement summarized the feelings of the entire team. Clear expectations of fulfilling their potential left the girls eagerly awaiting their next chance to compete.

Twenty-two ball players, nine Freshmen, ten Sophomores, and three Juniors composed the team as they prepared for varsity competition. Sophomore Chris Owen turned out to be the most dependable hurler, but the leadership of Juniors Jason Sturdy and John Mahalik proved invaluable. To gain even more experience. Varsity Coach Carl Childers put his new philosophy into motion. Since, the JV season ended two weeks early. seven players were selected to: accompany the Varstiy for the four remaining games. Childers explained why he chose the group of Chris Parschall, Jeff Tillerson, Eddie Palmer, Chris Prawdzik, Gill, Sturdy, and Mahalik: "I felt like those kids were the future starters for our program and they needed to be exposed to competition on the varsity level. ## Expectations High for Team; Cardinals Miss Playoff Berth

Those who know MacArthur and have followed baseball, expected a lot from the 1986 team. Although a playoff berth did not materialize, a late season surge propelled the Cardinals to one game above .500.

The team began its campaign with high hopes as ten Seniors returned. Experience was abundant, but one important ingredient remained lacking, pitching. Three underclassmen, Juniors Clint Davis, Scotty Gage, and Freshman Tim Moore joined Senior Kirk Kuykendall on the staff. Kuykendall, however, injured his arm early, leaving the Cardinals in the hands of the three youngsters.

Pre-district competition began on a good note with a 4-1 record. Two losses in the last inning at the Steve Macko Classic, sent the Cards on a losing skid however finishing predistrict at 6-5.

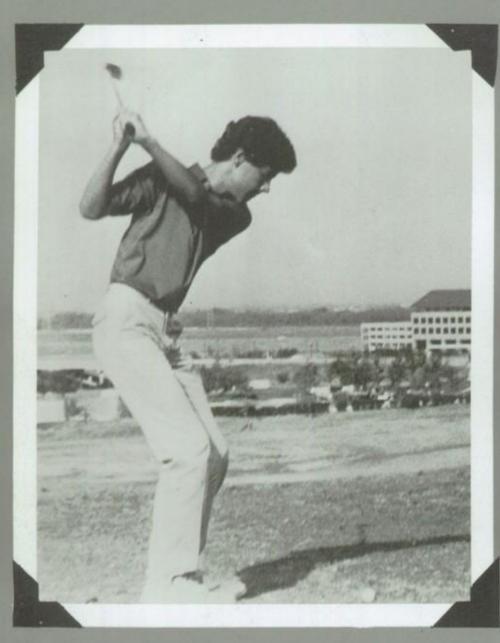

After losing back-to-back games to Duncanville and South Grand Prairie, the Cardinals turned things around with a string of five victories. It proved to be too little too late though as MacArthur finished 7-7 in third place, and 13-12 overall. Top hitters for the Cards were Gage at 379, Jeff Greer at 342, and Jon Harrison at 326. Davis finished with a 4-3 record and 40 strikeouts while Moore tallied 32 K's and a 1-0 mark

Golf Team Takes District Match; Five Progress to Next Level— Chance to Win Regional Title

"Four!" No, actually five golfers marked yet another superb year by overrunning all opponents to escape with the 8-5A District Tournament and advance to Regionals.

Junior Alan Wood led the group into the district running with his total of 150 on rounds of 71 and 79. These scores served as a pace for all competitors. "I tried to enter the tourney feeling confident. In order to have a good game, a player has to be able to handle the pressure," Wood explained.

Jeff Bell came in second on the Cardinal roster. The junior golfer stated, "I felt real good about this season. I finally obtained a feel for my clubs which helped me play in a more relaxed manner."

Gilbert Melendrez seemed to show the greatest improvement, as he confided, "I practiced very hard this year and it seemed to pay off."
Melendrez's improvement was an asset to the game as the entire Varsity Team advanced to the Regional Tournament.

Absent for a short interval in the season, Joe Russey returned to aid the Cardinals in a triumphant victory. "My reasoning for returning to high school golf was in regard to my decision to quit playing during college. I wanted to have something on which to reflect," the Junior explained.

Last, and youngest of the group, Sophomore Thomas Gutzke participated on the varsity level to save his talents for later years. In summing up the year, Coach Coy Williams expressed, "Those guys really loved the competition and out played everyone. They were truly a great group of golfers."

Tennis Team Takes City Title For Fifteenth Consecutive Year; Finish as District Runners-up

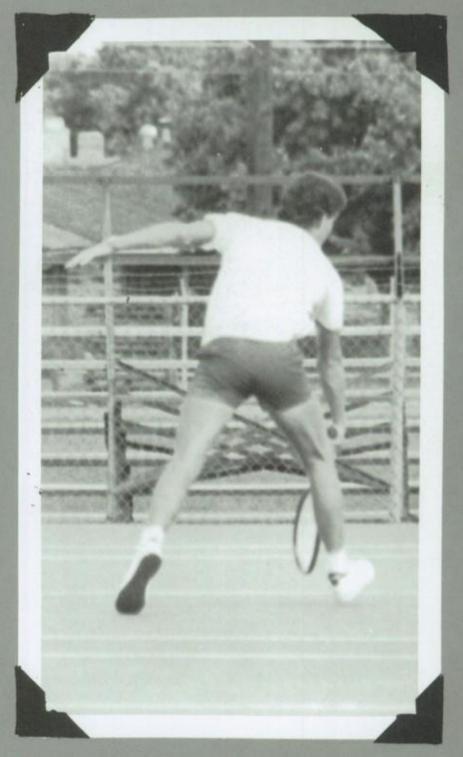

Coach Sam Morton and his netters produced yet another exciting year, dominating the city tournament for their fifteenth consecutive title and finishing as district runners-up.

Mac swept the City Tournament hosted by Irving High School as Rick Baird boasted his skill in singles while Brad Woy and Jim Lapp displayed perfect teamwork by winning doubles. Bill Brandes and Mark Wickham grabbed the number two spot in doubles to secure the title. Outstanding talent also dropped in the girls' court in the form of Lisa Schnee and Paige Craddock, who also won city titles. Ginger Brown and Leslie Moss brought the tournament to a close with a second place victory in ladies' doubles action. Morton believed this team worked hard.

The Cards blasted the District Tournament away at Keist Park in Dallas, as over seven teams battled for a ticket to State. Baird received another first place victory in singles He commented, "Winning District gave me a better feeling about the State Tournament." After severa battles on the court, Schnee and Craddock won what they already owned, the entire tournament Morton stated, "Missing the district title by one point was a little hard to take, but I'm happy we went to State."

Sports Medicine Staff in Charge Of Treating, Rehabilitating Injuries Related to Athletics

Twisted knee? Sprained ankle? Whenever an athlete suffered from an injury Trainer Justin "Doc" Walker or his staff of students never failed in taking care of the problem.

As well as treating and rehabilitating injuries. Walker and his trainers supplied water to the various athletic teams, while also managing pre-game tapings. Each week, the sports' medicine staff used up nnumberable rolls of tape and water cups.

All trainers worked the football games and practices due to the large number of players. Then, according to his or her own choice, each trainer handled a different sport. Girls' Basketball Trainer Kathryn Zamorano remarked, "Training was a plast, but at the same time it was hard work. It was not just an easy grade as nost people thought. Doc was really great the whole year."

In the absence of Walker, Senior Head Trainers Brent Sipe and Jeff Porter led the staff of 13. Aside from treatments and tape-ups, each trainer performed different jobs such as washing towels and cleaning the training room.

The year began in the summer with pre-season football, and as it progressed, trainers traveled with both the football team and girls' basketball team as they advanced further into the playoffs. Trainer Cristina Absalon commented, "It was a fantastic experience! Whenever the football team won the Regional Championship, I was there. It was so exciting."

Senior basketball player Angelique Draper relayed, "Doc really did a lot for my leg. Without his treatments, it would have been hard for me to play my best."

In the perpetual Battle of the Bulge, English teacher Natalie Picquet conquered obesity and trained others for the continuous light.

Freshman Skates While Others Enjoy Sleeping Until Daylight, But Perfection Means Sacrifice

Most people rarely see 3:45 am on their clocks. Not Susan Weller! She sees it five times a week while preparing to practice ice skating techniques.

Weller, a Freshman, practiced five days a week from 3:45 to 7 am at the Ice Capades Chalet. There she received two hours a week of coaching from each of two instructors. She relied heavily on the push given by her mentors, Jerry and Debby Lane.

Weller competed in over 20 state tournaments, winning over a dozen first place awards. She placed in two competitions involving students from several other states, one in Chicago and the other in Tulsa, winning two second place awards and one third. respectively

She undertook the task of going through a series of tests in ice skating forms which, when completed, certified her as a licensed teacher. She continued the tests, each a year long. and planned completion by the time of her graduation so as to allow her to teach directly out of high school.

"I sometimes wonder, when I get up in the morning, why I'm doing this, but when I hit the ice ... well, I don't even worry about it. I love it. I guess that is enough to keep anybody going." Weller enthused

Students Journey to South America For Better View of Halley's Comet Before It Disappears for 76 Years

"Mother Hen, Mother Hen?" cried Chicken Little. "The sky is falling!"

"Oh, you silly goose," said Mother Hen calmly. "That's just Halley's Comet."

"Wh-What's Halley's Comet?" quivered Chicken Little.

"Well, you see, Chicken Little," sighed Mother Hen as she began her discourse. "Halley's Comet is an atmospheric phenomena that appears every 76 years. In 1910, its last appearance, people dreaded the comet's arrival. However, in 1986, its thirtieth anniversary, many anxiously awaited the best viewing times, not because they feared the end of the world, but because they wanted to be sure to get a good look.

In order to have fun while viewing the fiery blaze. Americans in the 1980's formed comet parties to see history with their friends. Approximately nine students went to Peru where they were able to catch a glimpse of the famous comet. Senior Eric Melton mentioned, "The comet could be seen with the naked eye, and it was visible from Irving in October." Senior Jeff Daniels added, "On its return trip past the Earth in March and April, the comet was even more visible." When viewing, however, Daniels suggested using binoculars. "Although a telescope has greater magnifying power, its field of view is too confining to provide complete satisfaction."

"So you see, Chicken Little," finished Mother Hen, Halley's Comet is to be anticipated, not dreaded.

"I understand, Mother Hen," nodded Chicken Little, "but when do I get to see it again?"

Youth Action Centers Open in High Schools Through Cooperation Between City, IISD, IDP As Areas for Students to Gain Information

The Youth Action Center consisted not of video games or pool tables, but of police officers for each of the high schools in Irving.

Charles McCall served as an US Marine and a Montana Deputy Sherriff before journeying to the Irving Police force. After four years of service as a regular officer, he became a representative for the Youth Action Center. McCall remarked, "I enjoyed this much more than being on patrol This program presented a more positive outlook for the student, as well as the officers." McCall studied sociology in college, as did his wife, now a teacher at Sally B. Elliot Elementary School in Irving.

The Youth Action Center provided an alternative to pressing formal charges at the station. McCall explained, "I served as an in-between. A student could come to my office. ask questions about the law, and file a report directly to me." Officer McCall obtained information for any student who found it easier to talk to a policeman than to a counselor or vice principal. As McCall ventured into the classrooms, some popular problems confronting him throughout the year proved to be drugs, child abuse, and criminal misdemeanors.

The Irving Police Department, in cooperation with the Irving Independent School District. sponsored the Youth Action program, which corroborated with KeyLink. Both of these programs were funded mutually by the state and the city of Irving

White Water Closes Pools, Slides After Providing Students Jobs During Its Four Year Tenure

White Water, one of the Metroplex's most popular attractions, ended a four year tenure in January. Rival Wet 'n Wild purchased both the park in Grand Prairie and in Garland, much to the dismay of many working students from Irving schools. Senior Lisa Welborne elaborated, "White Water was a rare mix of fun and work. I'll " miss it."

The Garland site plans to reopen as a Wet 'n Wild venture, but the park in Grand Prairie closed its doors forever.

A spokesman for Recreation Ventures Inc., company remarked, "The land has become too valuable for a water location. The exact fact of the 25 acres reamins undetermined, although a hotel is a distinct possibility."

Disappointed students complained about the trade. "A water park may not seem as important as a land site, but it was certainly more important to us than another hotel. Hotels cover the city, but how many places are there like White Water?" pondered Senior Kris McFerren.

US President's Penchant for Hunting Remembered in Cuddly Teddy Bear, Found in Malls, Shops, Collections

Straight from malls and specialty shops across the land, the Teddy Bear snuggled his way into the hearts and homes of millions.

The trendy crusade originated with Teddy Roosevelt, affectionately named after the United States President. His love for hunting the real thing was remembered and kept alive when George Morrison invented the walking, talking Teddy Ruxpin. Then along came the specialty store Bear Hugs. Bear Hugs sold nothing but bears of all sizes . . . and prices. These bears ranged from $10 to almost $450.

How could people become this crazed over a stuffed animal? "Easy, just hug one and you will see." exclaimed Marion Jarrell. Jill Yandry added. "People who didn't understand, obviously never hugged a cute, warm Teddy Bear."

Like an epidemic, these bears brought their loving disease right out of the stores and infected everyone with names like Snuffles and Cuddles

Freshman Class Fund Raiser Puts Cardinal Time on Wrists. Dollars in First Year Treasury

Andrea Manser Yolanda Nathen

Shannon Naylor Shannon Nelson

You may have seen people walking around school wearing Cardinal watches on their wrist. Wondering where they got them? The answer proved to be the Freshman Class.

The Freshman Class sold these watches for $25.50. Many students exhibited their school spirit by buying and wearing the time piece.

As a fund raiser, selling watches proved quite profitable, as 35 sales gave the class approximately $900.

Most fund raisers are aimed specifically toward one class. This one proved to be unique in allowing the whole student body to become involved.

Jade Lamb remarked, "I thought the watches were a good idea. A lot of people were interested, and it really helped the Freshman Class." Lana Youngblood agreed, adding, "Selling watches was good because they were something that the students could keep to remember MacArthur."

Freshman's Collection Begins As Small Pile, Grows to 1500

Remember the last time you read a comic book? Treasured by the young, memories of comics faded away by the time most kids reached high school. Freshman Dean Gamboa remembered. He remembered to the extent of his collection, including more than 1500 of the entertaining magazines.

Gamboa began his collection at the age of eight. He started by stacking his comics in the corner of his room. The pile grew into a five drawer filing cabinet filled with his favorites. Worth around $10 a piece in 1984, the carefully wrapped books continued to appreciate in value.

But he never dreamed of selling his collection. Why, then, would anyone (want over a 1000 comic books? For Gamboa, what started as a mere hobby gradually became one of his most prized possessions. "The Fantastic Four" held the spot for the largest amount of one series, with almost 200 issues. Gamboa listed "The X-Men" as his all time favorite, however.

Dancer Begins in Fifth Grade; Now Performs for Special Events

Dancing! We all do it to show emotion or to have fun with the crowd, but the more talented people, such as Heather Hellinghausen. appreciate dancing a little more.

Hellinghausen started her dancing career in the fifth grade at Riley's Academy. Riley's marked the place where she had her first serious practice in tap, jazz, and ballet. Naturally, the Freshman became more infatuated with dancing and moved her classes to Gloria Whetstone's Academy. She remained there through the seventh and eighth grades, improving her talent and skill.

Upon entering high school. Hellinghausen also enrolled in a new dance school. She, along with several others, moved with their instructor, Dana Davis, to her new studio where they started taking classes. Immediately things started looking up when she performed at the opening of the Irving Cultural Arts Center. She performed in Red, White, Blue Review, The Nuteracker, and special events such as the opening of Heritage Park and Art Sunday.

Cloudy Day Reflects Feelings Of Girls After Powderpfuff Loss

A cloudy, overcast day reflected the feelings of the Freshman Powderpuff Football Team on April 19. Throughout the first half of the Freshman-Sophomore game, the two teams played evenly. However, near the end of the second quarter, the sky began to darken for the tiring ninth graders in the form of a touchdown by their opponents. The score proved to be the only points made by either team, leaving the Sophomores with a 7-0 victory.

The Sophomores' remembrances of last year's loss glorified the satisfaction of winning this year. "Losing 37-0 last year really made us determined to prove ourselves," explained Patty Rudolph. "Once we scored, all we had to do was hold on."

Sophomore Wendy Conoley scored the team's winning touchdown. Coach Todd Davis also listed Rhonda

Holland and Rudolph invaluable to the team's success. Spectator Eric Olson commented, "The Sophomores seemed to be a bit more organized. Of course, they had the experience."

Traditionally. Freshmen have lost on a much greater scale. Allowing only one touchdown, the younger team displayed a great amount of potential. Offensively, Amy Phillips proved to be a worthy opponent. while Johanna Job led the defense. After the game, disappointed, yet eager, the girls planned for the future. "Just wait until next year," exclaimed Phillips.

Although powderpuff games generated much competition, the spirit of fun never ceased to be forgotten. Standard skirts and wigsm worn by male cheerleaders, added a sense of light-hearted fun to the event.

Sophomore's Stardom Dream Becomes Acting Career Reality With Jobs in Major Commercials

Gary Tyner turned his dream of stardom into reality.

Tyner's career began early, in fact, at just eight weeks old. While most mothers still awed over their newborn baby, Kathy Tyner flad Gary posing for insurance billboards. This proved to be only the beginning for the talented Sophomore, as his face such as MacDonalds. Sanger-Harris. Pizza Inn. and Jimmy Dean Sausage.

Southland Executive Believes Building Project, High School Centers of Community Interest

"What is it?" one asks, as one travels daily to and from school, dodging little orange cones blocking a convenient lane, or waiting for slow dumptrucks, bulldozers, and tractors to move out of the way. "When will they ever finish whatever they're building?"

Questions, like these, pondered the minds of students since construction began on a new development project located west of the student parking lot along MacArthur Boulevard.

Although the 471/2 acres accommodating MacArthur High School does not belong to Las Colinas, Southland Investment Properties' Marketing Senior Vice President Ron McLure believed that the school and project complimented each other. "With the Arts Center and MacArthur High School both located here, there would always be something happening which would be of interest to the community." The new Irving Arts Center complex already housed an art museum and two theaters, as well as offices for the Irving Arts Board, Chamber of Commerce, and Convention Bureau.

Vice Principal Francine Maulding commented, "I feel the development was a wonderful idea for the simple reason the project will not only beautify the school, but also bring about recognition."

Younglife Leaders Sponsor Saturday Night Student Group Of Campaigners for Bible Study

What's going on Saturday night. I don't have a car! These cries sounded every week from Sophomores and Freshmen. Coming up with a cure, Younglife leaders Tim McNamara and John Rutledge held Campaigners every Saturday night.

The crew usually gathered at one of the students' houses for a quick Bible study, and then took off for the next rendezvous. On an ordinary night, the group caught a movie or ran around sampling food from different restaurants. Malibu became a popular place to spend time. First, everyone went through a round of miniature golf; then challenged the batting cages to separate the men from the boys. The 90 mile-an-hour pitch defeated many. Also rated favorties were golfing, go-carting, and swimming.

Many times special things came up like weekend retreats, conferences, or trips to the lake for the weekend. Dawson McAllister held a conference n Dallas at Prestonwood Baptist Church. For trips to the lake, Jeff Hales permitted the use of his lake house. Most of the time everyone either water skiied or laid in the sun. Pine Cove in East Texas provided all the great things for a weekend retreat.

Campaigners provided an excellent chance to get to know people better and provided times for good clean fun.

Falstaff Memorabelia Proves That Collecting Can Be Better Than Drinking for Sophomore

Collecting cans served as his game. and Falstaff proved to be the name. Jeff Money, a Sophomore, continued his collection of cans and bottles, accumulating over 200 from the Falstaff Beer series dating as far back as 1913. In addition to the cans and bottles, he gathered Falstaff signs, bottlecaps, ashtrays, posters, coasters, coolers, and bags. "I've been collecting since I was ten and I wish to continue until I have collected all of the Falstaff logos," Money explained.

Money took a considerable amount of time rounding up his novelties on Saturdays, participating in a variety of beer conventions, markets, and trading sessions. The ultimate bargain arrived last summer at an annual beer raders convention in Fort Worth. He explained, "I don't drink the stuff, I ust collect it. I liked the look of the able and started collecting."

Aside from his collecting beer memorabilia, Money also actively participated in Theatre Arts II as a drama student.

Sophomore Stands Motionless As Live Mannequin to Display Store's Fashions to Customers

Actress of model? Well, actually both. Sopohomore Lee Ann Tillman worked as a human mannequin at the clothing store Ups-n-Downs in Irving Mall. Exhibiting the store's clothes, Tillman received experience in both acting and modeling.

In early February, she tried out for the Teen Board at the store along with 14 others eventually filling the position. Store managers required the girls to demonstrate still modeling and their walking techniques.

Tillman met with the Board and store managers every Wednesday to discuss plans on future fashion shows and publicity activities. On Saturdays, she became a live mannequin. At first, she modeled for 30 minutes and then took five minute rest periods. The store then increased her time to an hour and a half before allowing her a break. Tillman remarked that people sometime acted rude toward her. Most of the time, shoppers laughed and poked at her all the time.

For her services, the store granted her a 20% discount on its clothes. She commented, "All I did was look at the floor. I never looked at the customers because I knew I would start to laugh."

The Sophomore planned to pursue a possible career in retail merchandising or fashion designing. Aside from the still modeling, she made the Cardette squad and participated in Younglife. She also remained active in her church youth group.

Sophomore Learns Techniques Of Theatrical Sound, Lighting By Appearing in Local Shows

If you were looking for Sophomore Matt Darr, you would likely find him sitting in his room playing his red Electropheonix guitar.

Purchasing the instrument in September, Darr taught himself how to play, but his background in violin helped considerably. Playing the violin for five years won two first place medals for Darr and one second in solo and ensemble competition.

He also showed much interest in acting as well. He attended an open audition for Cinderella for Metro Players in Northgate Plaza. Winning a spot in the cast led to parts in other shows: Once Upon a Mattress, The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas, and The Princess and the Pea, which appeared on cable television. When asked how these experiences helped him, Darr replied, "While they helped me with my acting, I also learned a lot about lighting and sound through watching and asking questions. I hope to make this my life's work."

Darr's future plans include attending Northlake College for two years, and then enrolling in Video Technical Institute to learn about working lights and sound on stage and

Parking Lady's Identity Told After Four Years

"Do you have a car?" "Do you have a quarter?" "Do you have a parking lot pass?" Without these possessions. it was difficult to enter the school parking lot in the morning, but the parking lot attendant, Mary Capps, would probably let you in anyway. Yes, we now know the parking lot lady's name.

Capps has managed to remain an employee of HSD for eight years, the last six at Mac, while attending the lot for four. She reported for work from 7 am to 4 pm and collected money from 7 to 8:30 am. After completing that ob, she prepared herself for her hourly rounds, which were made throughout the day.

When asked whether or not the job bored her, Capps replied, "No! Some people might tend to think so, but I've always enjoyed working with kids. The job is easy and lets me have some time to myself—a whole lot of time. because no one ever gives me any trouble. The kids are pretty good. The only thing I get a lot of is shoe polish."

Cason achieved this by taking flying lessons at age 16. He became serious about flying in the summer of his sixteenth year and acquired 13 hours of dual flight time. This enabled Cason to fly his first solo on October 6, 1985. He then enrolled in ground school while continuing to log hours of actual flight time.

Cason started flying with his instructor, Lynsey Memmi, in a Cessna 150 and flew his solo and the last part of his private testing in a Piper 140. The flying lessons consisted of pre-flight checks, take-offs, stall outs, wing-overs, and dead stick landing. Memmi also prepared Cason for two to three months on minute details which aided in passing the private test check-ride.

Passing this check-ride allowed Cason to get his private license in the summer of 1986. Cason stated, 'Lynsey was real hard on me, but it was necessary for me to become a good pilot. He put me through situations that the FAA didn't require n their tests."

The impressive aspect of Cason's llying serves in that he paid for all of his lessons by holding several jobs over the past four years.

Upperclassmen Take Upperhand In Junior/Senior Basketball Bash

Upperclassmen proved they possessed the upperhand at April's annual Junior-Senior Basketball Game. In accordance with MacArthur's other rivalries, the two classes took to the court to rehash last year's junior win.

This time the Seniors came out on top, embarrassing their junior opponents, 72-52. The senior team consisted of Cardinal football players Brian Love, David Canchola, Jon Henderson, and Steve Page. Cedric Thompson and Tim Hunt also contributed to the winning effort, as Chris Ratcliff coached the group. Doug Weisbruch coached the junior squad, which combined the talents of Scotty Davis, Shawn Wood, Brian Wish, Matt Powell, Jim Oshel, and Chris Irby. Although it was a light hearted game, the Seniors took advantage of every scoring opportunity.

Halftime proved more exciting than the game, however, as a slam dunk contest brought out the show off in everyone. Contestants pumped the ball through the hoop numerous times before judges Lane Ladewig and Dick Stinson selected Senior Brian Love to be Mr. Dunk of 1986. Love modestly recalled, "If you've got it, flaunt it. Maybe I taught the guys something." Davis and Irby possessed their own moves which earned the hoopsters second and third place.

An impromptu referee corps participated in the game as members of the Lady Cards Basketball Team, Laurie Olson, Debbie Cober, and Lisa Zvonecek called the fouls, enjoying their chance to blow whistles. Sophomore Darin Anderson manned the clock and scoreboard, providing all the elements of a legal game. Zvonecek relayed, "I had a great time as a referee, but now I know what they feel like when everyone boos them!" Ratcliff, the winning coach, commented, "The guys played hard and had a lot of fun in the process. I say, bring on the Celtics!"

Although the competition proved to be stiff, having fun served as the most important goal for students, rather than following the rules.

Drama Club Performs *Harvey*As Tribute to Graduating Seniors

Eleven cast members, Director Lauralee Ingram, and a six foot invisible white rabbit combined to create the Drama Club's spring production of Harvey.

Presented May 2 and 3 at 8 pm in the auditorium, the play served as a farewell performance for the senior cast members.

Written by Mary Case, Harvey mirrored the life of Elwood, played by Dale Walker, as a man who carries on a friendship with a six foot white rabbit, Harvey, whom no one can see.

The two night production ended with a cast party Saturday night at Director Ingram's home. Junior Barbara Lewis commented, "I felt the cast really pulled through for each other. We felt very successful in our performance. What I enjoyed most was that we worked as a family."

'86 Red, White Game Introduces Varsity, Cardettes, Cheerleaders

A new Cardette dressed herself in her new outfit and felt a small nervous chill go through her spine. In another locker room, a varsity football player strapped on his gear and prepared himself for a night of revenge against a few of his favorite teammates. Then, a newly elected Varsity Cheerleader put on her make-up and practiced some chants which she would be performing before a crowd of more than 400 people.

The Cardette, the football team, the cheerleader, and the crowd anticipated one of the best mid-May events ever—the Annual Red and White Game. The event was held at Loos Stadium in North Dallas instead of Irving Schools Stadium due to field problems.

The Varsity Football Team began its road to another great season with a successful intrasquad match with the Red Team defeating the White, 27-24. Though dividing the teams caused a competitive atmosphere, Coach Ray Overton summed it up in his post game speech—explaining that the Cardinals won this one. Darren Arterbury, Craig Sherril, Tony Anderson, Brad Knouse, Marty Molina, and Chris Henderson all scored one way or another to add bright lights to a night full of stars.

Then the spotlight moved to the Cardettes, who did an original part jazz, part kick routine, which they had practiced four weeks. Krisiti Jones recalled, "I was nervous at first, but after I started everything went well." The half time spectacular featured the new Cardettes and leaders in their first performance. "I felt we did great for our first performance," reflected Angi Francis, "and it looked like next year's season will be great."

Throughout the night, though the new Varsity Cheerleaders kept the game exciting and the crowd involved. After practicing cheers and yells for a month and a half, the new group cheered with the student body that chose them. Kristina Weisbruch commented, "I thought we had a great turn out, considering the fact that it was at Loos Stadium."

Sesquicentennial Celebration Extends from HERO Classroom To Rotary Flag Presentation

mean, some might ask. It means 150 years of independence for the state of Texas in 1986.

In accordance with the birthday celebration, each school in the IISD received commemorative flags honoring the state. MacArthur's banner, presented by Rotary Club members Al Jarrell and Matt Bozman at a March student council meeting. flew over the school for the remainder of the school year.

The year consisted of parties in all different parts of the state, and, as expected, Mac students planned and carried out activities of their own, namely, HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations).

The students received packets distributed by teacher Mary Lou Knoerzer. These packets contained a variety of items marked with the Sesquicentennial logo. These included table place mats, stuffed animal Texadillos, pens and pencils, Sesquicentennial! What does that Christmas ornaments, playing cards, and plastic cups. The club began selling these items January 30 and continued for two weeks.

> The organization began selling these items January 30 and continued on through February. Sales remained open to anyone the students felt would buy, but were mainly confined to their places of employment. Knoerzer remarked, "I think the packets were very well organized and presented and open market in the types of goods offered. The selling benefits the students' standing in his or her job by giving them more experience in retail sales, and also gave them a little stronger feeling about the state's independence and persuaded them to participate more in its celebration."

> The money raised helped pay the expenses the club had in putting together their annual employee/employer luncheon held in April.

Season Interrupted for Three Due to Football Related Injuries; Surgery Performed on Two

Unfortunately, three senior varsity starters, Kevin James, Steve Vance, and Bill Clark suffered season-ending injuries during the 1985 football campaign.

James, who started as cornerback, experienced a rotational injury to the lower bone in his leg, on just the seventh play of the Highland Park game. During surgery, the doctors inserted a steel plate with six metal screws into his leg to hold it in place while healing. James, reacting to the accident, replied, "After it happened, it was hard to accept because football had been a dream of mine since I was a little kid."

Bluechipper and top college prospect Steve Vance injured his neck due to an accident he suffered as a child. Chronic pinched nerves, a vertebrae defect at the base of the neck, excluded him from participating in any contact sports in which he might have received a blow to the neck. Vance explained, "I was mad about the injury, but life's full of disappointments."

Clark, a two-time All District performer, went down with torn knee ligaments during the second quarter of the Wichita Falls playoff. He underwent surgery the next week to hopefully strengthen his knee for a possible college career.

Senior Class Decorates School As Part of Annual Celebration Prior to Homecoming Game

Once again the Senior Class kicked off the annual Homecoming celebrations by decorating the school the night before the game against Grand Prairie.

The majority of the Seniors spent the previous week on the street in front of the home of Lisa Zvonecek making posters and other decorations for the big event. The night before the game, they met at the school at 11 to group their artistic abilities together. They arrived with car loads of posters, streamers, and shoe polish.

After all was said and done, the campus and the buildings looked as though they had been the location for one of the largest senior class parties ever held. The school was covered from ground to roof with signs of Homecoming spirit. Tami Clamp stated, "It was really fun, but many people went a little overboard with the decorations."

After taking one look at the campus the day of the game, one easily saw that the Seniors of 1986 did it right.

Antique Fire Truck Donated For Spirit of '86 Appearances: Seniors Restore Vehicle for Use

By restoring a 1940 fire truck for use at pep rallies, games, and other events, the Class of '86 came blazing onto the scene.

The truck spent many years of hard service in Birmingham. Alabama, before becoming the main attraction at the Grand Prairie Fire Museum. Jeff Singleton and Curtis Graf, two antique car collectors, purchased the museum in 1985 and donated the vehicle to the MacArthur Booster

Many Seniors spent long hours sanding and preparing the truck for painting, donated by David McDavid's General Manager Wayne Lamb and Leonard Burton. Seniors and Booster Club members installed new lights, bells, and decking. The truck took the name, Spirit of '86. The workers included: adult Booster Club members Carl Fite and Keith Wieters. Seniors Jay Billingsley, Albert Jarrell, Jeff Greer, Mark Olson, Chris

Ratcliff, Allison Chaney, Mike Munoz, Jeff Daniels, Shannon Fite, Richard Smith, Robert Gowan, Tina Gilmour, Jay Brown, Bill Clark, Kris McFerren, Bruce Johnson, and Sophomores Rodney Wieters and Jim Jarrell, Jay Billingsley commented. "Working on the truck has been a team effort and it has enhanced the spirit not only at football games but also at many other activities. But most of all, it brought us together as a senior class."

The Spirit of '86 made its debut on October 12, at the MacArthur vs Irving game. Lights spun, bells rang, and Seniors danced each time the Cardinals scored. People gathered when the fire truck paraded around the streets during Homecoming with Seniors of '86 topping off its appearance.

The fire truck symbolized a successful year buy raising excitement at outside school activities.

Reactions to 'Buckle-Up' Law Vary as Students Voice Opinions; Most Agree with Legislation

Buckle up! It's the law! In September of 1985, the Texas State Legislature passed a law requiring all front seat occupants of moving vehicles to wear seatbelts. People reacted differently to the measure. How did it affect the students at MacArthur?

Senior Wade Walker commented.
"I did not wear my seatbelt that much—only when I saw the police. Why should I?" Wearing seatbelts proved to be advantageous for most people. For one thing, students avoided many serious injuries. Junior Bill Woods escaped possible injuries, by strapping in. In addition, insurance rates remained lower for individuals who wore their seatbelts when involved in accidents.

However, some disadvantages when I buckled up." emerged in buckling up. For example, people feared being trapped by their belts. Plus. strapping in inconvenienced some drivers because it limited their freedom. Only a small fraction of casualties resulted in failure to comply with the law, though. Senior Paige Craddock explained, "It should be the driver's choice on whether or not to wear seatbelts. After all, it's our lives at stake."

Department of Public Safetyl Officials relayed that police usually dispensed citations for failure to strap in only when drivers committed another offense. Usually, the presence of the police caused people to strap in.

Senior Sam Gonzales remarked, "I always wore my seatbelt. It took a' little getting use to at first, but then it became a habit. I felt more secure when I buckled up."

Senior's Involvement in Tennis Opens Way to Friends, Travel; Credits Mom for Seeing Talent

Tennis was a simple pastime played once or twice a summer for most people. Rick Baird, however, disagreed by stating, "No way! Tennis was my life!"

Baird began playing tennis at age 7 when his mother taught him how to hit the ball while practicing in the driveway. After realizing that he had a real talent at the sport, he began taking professional lessons a few months later. At age 9, Baird began playing competitive tennis, and has not stopped since.

The athlete spent his junior year attending John Newcombe's Tennis Ranch in New Braunfels. There, he met other tennis players from all over the world, and spent the majority of his time training and practicing at his sport.

In the summer of 1985, Baird was one of eight chosen from the Metroplex to compete for the Dallas National City Team. He exclaimed. "One of the highlights of my tennis career was playing for this team." It was composed of eight players in the Dallas area and competed against, teams from other states. They took second place in the competition.

Baird also placed second in the Western Open Tournament, and was ranked twenty-first for his first in his age category, and third for the doubles category in the state of Texas.

He planned to continue playing tennis throughout college and then decide where to go from there. Tennis Coach Sam Morton remarked, "Baird was a real leader and helped in motivating his fellow players. He was always open to new ideas and also to offer pointers to his teammates. He was the best men's player that has come through Mac in a long time and if he continues to play, has the potential to be first in the state." Baird attributes his success to his mother in relating. "Playing tennis has been very rewarding because I have made a lot of friends from all over the world, and have been given the opportunity to participate in tournaments held from Boston to San Francisco. I have to say that I owe it to my mom, because without her I probably never would have become so involved and interested in tennis."

Three Accepted to Academies After Passing Rigorous Exams; Education Valued at $180,000

Annapolis. Air Force Academy. West Point, and Merchant Marine Academy! These names carried themselves very well and represented the academies founded by the US military for students wishing to serve in the Navy. Air Force, Army, or Coast Guard. These names were often associated with prestige, dignity, and hard work, and everyone knew they were not easy to get into. MacArthur, however, managed to have three students lucky enough to receive nominations.

These three. Rob Sinclair, Mike Munoz, and Allison Chaney, received catalogs. forms, computer sheets, video tapes, and phone calls concerning the military academy experience in the spring of their junior year. After turning in forms,

The academies posted many requirements, such as a minimum 1100 SAT score, a physical fitness test, and a medical exam. "I began turning in forms and talking to people a academy in the spring of my junior year and I'm glad I did because this allowed for plenty of time to seek a nomination from Martin Frost. It was tough, but if you really want it, it was worth it," stated Sinclair.

These academies offered some of the best educational possibilities available anywhere in the US. Their schooling was valued at up to $180,000.

Home and Family Living Classes Organize Weddings, Receptions

Some people consider May to be a lovely month for marriage. Ann Williams' Home and Family Living classes seemed to agree as five couples joined in holy matrimony. These mock weddings demonstrated to the students all the preparation and costs involved getting to the altar.

Each of the five grooms chose their bride to be, proposed, and began organizing their individual ceremonies. After examining wedding rings, formal wear, and marriage licenses, the couples sent out their invitations. Once a minister and attendants were selected, the Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Jewish, Protestant, and Military weddings took place first period.

What is a wedding without a reception? The students' project certainly did not end with the "I do's", as all five couples held a reception for their guests. After each bride threw her bouquet, the couples marched off under a shower of bird seed, representing rice.

Males Wearing Pierced Earrings: Fad or Individuality Statement?

Anyone care to have their ear pierced? As fads come and go during a high school student's years, several males chose a different, more permanent eye-catcher.

The earringed male began with a few Seniors and gradually spread throughout other classes. Craig Stadler commented, "I got my earring one weekend in Padre when someone dared me to. After I did, I liked it and decided to keep it." Earrings, no longer a feminine accessory, gave people freedom of expression and individuality.

On the other hand, some people believed the male earring proved quite ridiculous. While girls expressed mixed emotions, Sophomore Amy Richardson explained why she was turned off, "Guys who got their ear pierced were just trying to get attention." But once a fad gets started it only makes sense to join it. Right? Coach Ray Overton disagreed. "I believed that a person should have had the courage to be different, but to exaggerate any act was just to bring attention to one's self."
